PNEUMATIC TIRES.

One of the busiest firms in this city is the American Dunlop Tire Company, whose factory is at 36 and 38 Lombard street. Everyone in and around the various departments of this factory is rushed to his or her utmost at present turning out thousands of the world's famous Dunlop detachable tires, and shipping them to bicycle manufacturers all over the Dominion.

Pneumatic tires were first invented by Mr. J. B. Dunlop nearly eight years ago, and the long practical experience of this company in the manufacture of tires has convinced them of the fact that a bicycle tire to be perfect, must be detachable, and must be made in such a way that in case of puncture, the injured part can be easily got at and repaired.

The Dunlop tire is composed of an inner tube and an outer cover, fastened to the rim by means of a tested wire, held on by inflation, while the rims themselves are made to stand a test of one hundred pounds to the inch. The Dunlop company has always aimed at turning out a good tire, regardless of trouble or expense, and has so far succeeded that it seems impossible to improve upon their present output. The inner tube is made of Para rubber, while the outer cover is composed of specially hardened stock, built upon South Sea Island cotton. This fabric is so soft and flexible, and yet so enormously strong in comparison to its weight, that it is particularly adapted to the manufacture of pneumatic tires.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

A Word to Our Advertisers.

We purpose making our December issue a special holiday number, increased in size and filled with most entertaining articles, brightly illustrated, and appropriate to the season. We are assured that it will be one of the brightest of the December magazine issues, and will stand first as Canada's home and woman's paper.

As our advertising space for the Christmas Number is already well taken up, we urge upon those desiring preferred or increased space to make early application. We also advise those who wish to advertise specially in this number to communicate with the Business Department at once.

All advertisements for the Christmas Number should be in the JOURNAL Office by the 12th.

The CANADIAN HOME JOURNAL reckons only a little more than a year of life, but its business has increased sufficiently to demand more commodious premises, and it has removed to the Globe Chambers, entrance 5 Melinda Street.

Our subscribers and advertisers will kindly note the change of address.

The CANADIAN HOME JOURNAL is an especially fitting and profitable magazine for lady agents to handle. We can assure any woman of a good weekly income in her own locality, without additional cost to herself. We give a liberal commission.

Women, at this season of the year, are often anxious to make pocket money. We guarantee them more, we guarantee a good weekly income.

Now, at the Christmas season, canvassing for the CANADIAN HOME JOURNAL will prove especially profitable.

Try it.

Send a letter of inquiry or call to see the Business Manager, who will give you full details.

EDITORIAL.

First, and editorially, we congratulate our readers on the offer made by the Business Department (see page 33), concerning Ian MacLaren's new book, "Kato Caraglio." A delightful tale, and one we shall chat about in review next month.

It is an easy matter to secure three subscribers to the CANADIAN HOME JOURNAL; and therefore no woman need be without the book. This tender writer's other tales are included in the offer. Here is a chance for lovers of Ian MacLaren, who otherwise could not afford to buy his bonny books.

Were it not that all our departments are, as usual, full of good things. We might almost call the November issue of the JOURNAL our Kirmes number, since it contains the fullest and most attractive sketch yet published of the Berlin German foto.

The illustrations are from the pencil of our own artist, and the costumes were sketched from life.

The Berlin Kirmes bids fair to become a notable institution, and our article will prove of especial interest to Canadian readers.

It is not generally known that fine perfumes are being manufactured in our own country, and the account of a visit to a Toronto manufactory, entitled "Pleasant Perfumes," will have especial interest at this approaching season of gifts.

Hector Charlesworth, in Stageland, gives a readable talk on Vaudeville.

We regret that our bright series of British Columbia articles are interrupted by the sickness of the writer; but we publish in its place three interesting sketches, written by a resident in the North-West Territory.

We reproduce a most readable article from the pen of Bertram G. Goodhue, a London artist. Quebec has been the theme of many a pen and pencil, but it has been never more entertainingly touched than in this instance.

Our Fashion pages contain a seasonable talk concerning Furs, and a chat about Tartans and Plaids, while the Art Needlework page gives the very newest things in Fancy work.

Mrs. Jean Joy talks at length of potatoes and their uses. Mrs. Joy, who is Superintendent of Domestic Science in the School of Technology, writes exclusively for the JOURNAL.

Lilian Claxton continues her bright, short story.

In "Just You and I" Faith Fenton writes two effective sketches from life.

Music and Art are filled with interesting notes.

The Children are again taken into confidence by Cousin Maud.

Ian MacLaren on the platform is discussed by the Editor.

Every page is original in matter and illustration. The breeziest number yet issued.
