

NATIONAL SCHOOL.

A public examination of this School took place yesterday, at which His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop, the Ven. the Archdeacon, a number of Clergymen and Gentlemen, and a goodly number of those ever foremost in a good work, the Ladies, attended.

As there seems to be a misunderstanding in the community with respect to the admission of scholars to this Institution, the Committee have requested us to publish the following extract from one of the Rules of the Society:—"Children of all denominations shall be alike received into the school, and although its religious instruction shall be conformable to the principles of the Church of England, these shall not be forced upon the pupils against the wishes of their parents."

Persons who have bought the New Selection of Psalms and Hymns, without the "Errata," may have it supplied by taking their Books to Mr. Gossip's Book Store, 24 Granville Street, where also the "Selection" is for Sale, with the "Errata" subjoined.

All correspondence in reference to the Editorial department of this paper must be addressed to the Editor, and that relating to money matters to Mr. Gossip. Postage in either case to be prepaid.

The R. M. S. Canada, arrived from Boston on Friday morning. The news is not of an important nature.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

A Churchman's is received. As several persons have been writing lately under that signature, it would be well for some to change it, so as to prevent confusion. The writer of this communication is offended, because we good humouredly reminded him, that the word "Altar" does not occur in our Prayer Books, and had better not be used in those times by any who minister according to that book.

Several other favours are on hand. We earnestly request our friends to use BREVITY in their communications.—This is particularly to be desired in the reports of the various Committees of the D. C. Society, which will soon be coming up. It will be utterly impossible to give these, from every Parish, of the dimensions to which they are sometimes stretched. A clerical brother has already entered his protest against such prolixity, in somewhat humorous terms. After one of those gentle rubs which Editors are often favoured with, he says—"It has generally been considered enough to keep within the moderate limits of the old Soldier, who only routed his foes 'thrice,' and 'thrice slow his slain,' and as that number of victories, has long ago been announced from various quarters, it is to be hoped that on every fresh occasion of the kind, it will be thought sufficient to notice, that 'such things have been without entering into full particulars.'"

We would not however insist on such short allowance as this, but only ask the reporters to be moderate, or else we must abridge for them. We insert to day a letter from a "Bachelor of Arts" on the subject of King's College, and we have received another in relation to that Institution signed "A Citizen"—which we will readily insert if the writer will allow us to soften some of the expressions it contains, and which might have no other effect than to irritate those concerned. We fully agree with the writer, who appears to be a warm friend of the College, as to his facts and his suggestions.

The suppressed communication to which he refers was not on the subject of the College. He complains that there is too little information as to the resources and expenditure of the Institution, and thinks the Governors should publish a yearly account of their proceedings—suggests a more profitable investment of their funds, and asks why, when the Steward of Acadia College receives but 7s. 6d. a week for the board (breakfast, dinner and tea) of each student, and pays £25 a year rent to the College, the Steward of King's should receive 12s. 6d. a week from each young man, (less being supplied than at Acadia) in the house and grounds free, and a salary in addition of £60 a year! He suggests that a saving at least to that amount might fairly be made, and more usefully applied to the payment of a Professor in Modern Science, or in Theology. "All the friends of King's College," says A Citizen, "must consider these hints worthy of consideration, and that if acted upon they would stir up Churchmen to subscribe with greater liberality towards its support."

Having had some experience in appeals to the Members of the Church, for pecuniary assistance to the College, we may be permitted to add, that it is very important to do something more than has yet been done in order to awaken an interest in behalf of the College, and that the next statements of its affairs are necessary, to be laid before the public, if such an interest is to be expected.
