"Your committee have observed that the amount of Harbour Dues collected in 1843 has not been so large as in the present year; but they trust the return for 1844 will show a compensating increase. It will have been noticed in the public accounts, that in 1842 the Net Customs of the Province amounted to the state of the course of the province amounted to the course of the state of the course of the province amounted to course the province amounted to to £265,386, but that in 1843 they amounted to only £218,-2265,386, but that in 1843 they amounted to only £218, 923; thus showing that the imports of the latter year had fallen considerably below those of the former. The Harbour Dues of Toronto being levies exclusively on imports, we should have expected to meet with a diminution corresponding with that in the Net Castoms. It is worth observing, however, that while the general Net Customs of the Province fell off 18 per cent, in 1843, the Toronto Harbour Dues fell off only 8 per cent. Per cent.; showing that the decrease in the Imports of this ty in 1843 was much under the average decrease of the whole

PROPOSED STEAM BOAT BETWEEN TORONTO AND GODE-RICH.—The etimates of a Steam Boat, to be worked by a propeller, in order that it may pass the We land Canal, have been brought. brought to our notice by a correspondent. It is proposed to build a steamer, at St. Catherines, which would cost £4,600, to ply between Toronto and Goderich. It is expected that such a vessel will make twelve trips during the season, carrying 2500 barrels of flour, 100 tons of mercdandize, and 60 passengers, and that this will produce a clear profit, after all expenses are Paid, of £3000, or above 50 per cent., after all allowances are made for contingencies. Various individuals are mentioned as willing to take shares. The people of Goderich are said to be willing to take £2000 of it, and the Canada Land Company Pays fify dollars to an American boat as a premium every time it touches Goderich, which they would prefer paying to a Canadian. We are unacquainted with the grounds on which these calculations have been made, but would recommend the parties who have made them to come openly forward with their names, and lay the plan regularly before the public, if they cannot have sufficient subscriptions privately. One thing is certain, that Toronto and Goderich, the terminations of the pro-Posed line, would derive material benefit from such a new me dium of intercourse, as well as every place on the line where it might be deemed expedient to touch .-WILD LANDS. - In connection with the subject of wild lands, would beg to direct the attention of the "collective wisdom" to a matter upon which, we believe, several petitions are now before them. We allude to the powers granted by the Municipal A. cipal Act, (or, at least, assumed by some of the Municipal Counils,) of taxing wild lands, not according to their value, but extent—an acre of swamp or rock, yielding nothing and worth nothing, being assessed at the same rate as an acre of pine or hard-wood timber; and, in the instance of the Sher brooke District Council, not even consenting to laying out the produce of the tax in the improvement of the Townships in which it is levied. It appears to us almost a waste of time to Point out the iniquitous injustice of such a tax, but as there lasts a strong—and, perhaps, not altogether an unjust—pre-alice against the holders of large tracts of wild land through-ut the Province, it may be as well to counteract this prejudice, ng the injustice of the tax in question palpable and evie commonest understanding; and this, we think, we

to the incorporation of "The Church Societies" is the power given to these Societies to acquire lands and other real estate to an unlimited extent. He sees great danger in this, and pictures to bimself all the evils arising out of the Feudal System in Europe. Our contemporary cannot but be aware that the Romish Church in this Province hold all their lands by this tenure; and is the Church of England to be refused privileges which, when compared with those secured to the Church of Rome, are but trifling? We hear of no objections made to the acquisition of property by the Presbyterians, Congregational-ists, Methodists, and other sects: but the moment the Church of England is named, a general outcry is raised by the "Liber-als." "Beware of corruption," says one party.—"Allow nothing to be done which in our opinion may interfere with the freedom of conscience," says another—and thus the whole Protestant community is set in a blaze and becomes a prey to dis-editorial, appears to have been to state his objections to the scheme of a present division of the Clergy Reserves. But to exclusively to their business, they can depend upon their orders any person possessing but one half the acuteness of the Editor of the Gazette, the flimsy nature of those objections ought to be apparent at first sight. His first objection is "that the pro-perty taken out of the guardianship of the State and the su-pervision of the second pervision of the representatives of the people, would be very likely to be wasted." The force of this objection amounts to this, that he would prefer the continuance of a certain was order to prevent the possibility of a contingent one, which all the circumstances of the case would incline us to think, never would take place. It is well known from the present system of management adopted in reference to the Clergy Reserves, that the whole of the proceeds are likely to be swallowed up in paying agents, &c., and that no denomination in the Province will probably be benefited by them. This objection would come very consistently from those whose only object is to deprive the Church of England of her right, but is uttered with a bad grace by the Editor of the Gazette, who, we presume, is influenced by no such motive. Upon the second objection we have little to say, as we are as great enemies to the secularization of the Clergy as any other person can be: but it is to be observed that a clergyman renires, as well as other men, some place of residence, and if he have a family he requires the produce of a piece of land for

But his third objection is the most extraordinary of all. He would amount to confiscation of the property in question, which generally yields little or no revenue, and the value of which, most a work of think that the Clergy Reserves should be kept as a generally yields little or no revenue, and the value of which, cation of sects amongst us, which are at present too numerous the sectarians themselves being judges. We very much regret that the distress of several of the clergymen in the Diocese of Toronto, owing to a "discordant nterpretation," on the part of the Imperial and Colonial Government, of the Clergy Reserve Act, which "secures permanently the sum of £7,700 sterling, annually, towards the support of the Church of England in Canada West," should have left the Bishop no alternative but that of addressing the clergy and laity of this part of the Province upon the subject, Watkins; but by the exertions of the neighbours and the fire department, the house and furniture were saved, but with partial damage.
