

- And a survey conducted by the government just a few weeks ago reveals that Canadians very much expect that social issues, particularly health, will be properly addressed, and that public services will be delivered with integrity, accessibility, respect and reliability.