

- In loco, in this place.
 Imprimis, in the first place.
 In terròrem, as a warning.
 In propria persòna, in his own person.
 In statu quo, in the former state.
 Ipse dixit, on his sole assertion.
 Ipso facto, by the act itself.
 Ipso jure, by the law itself.
 Item, also or article.
 Jure divino, by divine right.
 Jure humano, by human law.
 Jus gentium, the law of nations.
 Locum tenens, deputy, substitute.
 Labor omnia vincit, labour overcomes every thing.
 Licentia vatum, a poetical license.
 Lapsus lingue, a slip of the tongue.
 Magna charta, the great charter, the basis of our laws and liberties.
 Memento mori, remember death.
 Memorabilia, matters deserving of record.
 Meum et tuum, mine and thine.
 Multum in parvo, much in little, a great deal in few words.
 Nemo me impune lacesset, no one shall provoke me with impunity.
 Ne plus ultra, no farther, nothing beyond.
 Noliens volens, willing or unwilling.
 Non compos mentis, not of a sound mind.
 Nisi Dñminus frustra, unless the Lord be with us, all efforts are in vain.
 Ne quid nimis, too much of one thing is good for nothing.
 Nem. con. (for nẽmine contradicente,) none opposing.
 Nem. dis. (for nẽmine dissente,) none disagreeing.
 Ore tenus, from the mouth.
 O tẽpora, O mores, O the times, O the manners.
 Omnes, all.
 Onus, burden.
 Passim, every where.
 Per se, by itself, alone.
 Prima facie, at first view, or at first sight.
 Potestẽ comitatus, the power of the county.
 Primum mōbile, the main spring.
 Pro and con, for and against.
 Pro bono pũblico, for the good of the public.
 Pro loco et tẽpore, for the place and time.
 Pro re nata, as occasion serves.
 Pro rege, lege, et grege; for the king, the constitution, and the people.
 Quo animo, with what mind.
 Quo jure, by what right.
 Quoad, as far as.
 Quondam, formerly.
 Res pũblica, the commonwealth.
 Resurgam, I shall rise again.
 Rex, a king.
 Regina, a queen.
 Senatus consultum, a decree of the senate.
 Seriãtim, in regular order.
 Sine die, without specifying any particular day.
 Sine qua non, an indispensable prerequisite or condition.
 Statu quo, the state in which it was.
 Sub pœna, under a penalty.
 Sui gẽneris, the only one of his kind, singular.
 Supra, above.
 Summum bonum, the chief good.
 Tria juncta in uno, three joined in one.
 Tõties quõties, as often as.
 Una voce, with one voice, unanimously.
 Ul'timus, the last, (contracted ult.)
 U'tile dulce, the useful with the pleasant.
 Utĩ possidẽtis, as ye possess, or present possession.
 Verbatim, word for word.
 Versus, against.
 Vade mecum, go with me; a book fit for being a constant companion.
 Vale, farewell.
 Via, by the way of.
 Vice, in the room of.
 Vice versa, the reverse.
 Vide, see, (contracted into v.)
 Vide ut supra, see as above.
 Vis poẽtica, poetic genius.
 Viva voce, orally; in word of mouth.
 Vivant rex et regina, long live the king and the queen.
 Vox pũpli, the voice of the people.
 Vulgo, commonly.