To Keep the Face

Fresh, Clear, Youthful

(National Hygienic Review). More important than the cos imore important than the cosmetic care of the complexion is its physical care. To keep the face clean, fresh, youthful, there's nothing better than common mercolized wax. It absorbs the soiled or faded, wornout skin particles. Using cosmetics simply adds unwholesonmess to the complexion. That's the difference. By ail means, acquire the mercolized wax habit. It's so easy to get an ounce of the wax at the druggist's, apply at night like cold cream and wash it off next morning. There's no detention indoors, the old skin complex off so gradually no one suspects

Mr. Lewis on Voting.

The fourth of a series of weekly lectures now in progress under the auspices of the Central Neighborhood Settlement was given last night in the Elizabeth Street School by John Lewis of The Toronto Star. The subjection of the lecture was "The vote," and his adjence was made up of young men, boys and girls, the majority of whom were foreigners. Mr. Lewis used the simplest language possible, and Mr. Geary then attempted persuasion, but the woman kept silence for some time, and then gave her definition of her "business" and the "business" of others.

ioned in the column one of the most mportant duties parents must facethat of being frank with their children in the teaching of personal hygiene. I hardly know why I have left this discussion so late, unless it was feeling of leaving a very important thing to the last of these general talks. It is high time, you know, that we started talking young baby again. Just think of the numbers that should be learning how to sleep, that should be learning how to sleep, feed and cry while we are dealing with ordinary grown-ups.

However, that is very much aside. If I have one complaint to make to your nursery readers it is that you "won't discuss," you let me do all the arguing—if one can call a one-sided affair an argument. If you care to write me concerning this point of teaching children the mystery of life, I shall be glad of your opinions, which I am sure can be of much benefit to Exchequer Lloyd George's house at Walton Heath.

THE FIRST COURSE

OUP is the prelude to the dinner. It is light, stimulating food that prepares the way for the meal to follow.

It is easy to make soup, for stripped of the technical terms that confuse the inexperienced, it is merely the juices of the meat, extracted by long simmering and seasoned to suit. The seasoning, "Aye, there's the rub," must be mixed with good judgmen and ingenuity, and these last many a would-be cook lacks.

There are but two kinds of soups—fat and lean—and these two subdivided again and again into many headings.

The rich brown soups are made from beef or beef and fowl, and these are seasoned with soup vegetables, a little paprika to give piquancy and REV. DR. SYMONDS color and as many different herbs as your family's taste admits. The amber-hued or clear soups are made with fowl or veal. Nothing s added to cloud their transparency, celery salt, a little onion and white pepper giving all the seasoning necessary.

The proportions for all soups are the same; one quart of water to pound of meat; that is twice as much water as meat. Break the bones and cut the meat in small pieces, add salt enough to give a bright taste and sufficient pepper to give a warm tone. Simmer gently until all the strength is extracted from the meat.

When the simmering is well under way, add the herbs. The good soup maker is a careful taster. The savory herbs should blend with the spices so that each one helps the other and hides itself. Some markets sell the pot-herbs made into soup bouquets, again a meat man will send the soup vegetables with the meat. This bouquet, as Press.)—It is strange that a sensation made up on the famous Baltimore market, contains, for four pounds of soup meat, two sticks of celery, one carrot cut in strips, one onion cut in pieces, clergyman preaching the gospel of six pepper corns, one bay leaf, a sprig of thyme and marjoram. These are all tied in a few sprigs of parsley and are easy to remove It is hard to understand why there after they have done their work of seasoning.

For rich brown soups the vegetables are cut in cubes and browned in butter and added to the broth when it is almost done and after the meat has been removed.

The stock-pot, as used abroad, will never find favor in American kitchens, as we are taught that meat for every purpose must be absolutely fresh. The stock-pot, from our point of view, is not a saving. The real saving, we think, is to buy in the right quantity so that we will have no "left-overs."

Stock is clarified to add to its appearance and not to its quality. It is not clear and free from every particle of fat.

Cream soups are made without stock. Their base is a vegetable, boiled and crushed to a puree and then seasoned and enriched with cream and seasoning. However, a cup of rich stock or a tablespoon of meat extract improves any cream soup.

Velvet cream soups are popular at ladies' luncheons, but are seldom that the elaborate dinner.

Bisques are the oldest form of broth. They date back to the days when Noah and his boys caught the wherewithal to make them from the sides of the ark.

They are made not only from fish, but from clams, oysters and lobsters, and are exquisite and delicious. They need to be highly seasoned, rich and not very thick. They are usually slightly colored with browned butter. The stock-pot, as used abroad, will never find fa-
