SCORES TRYING PHYSICAL TEST OF DRAFT ARM

Applicants Line Armories Today and On Saturday, Awaiting Examination.

EIGHT MEN SIGNED UP

That Many Joined Colors Over Week-End With Various Overseas Units.

Lines of applicants at the Armories to day and returns for Saturday, which show that twenty civilians came before medical board to discover whether or not they were eligible for service in the draft army, testify to the willingness of men liable for service under the military service act to learn now whether they are "fit" and decrease the work which the calling up of the first draft will entail.

work which the calling up of the mach draft will entail.

More than a score of men ranging from 20 to 35 years of age lined the gallery in the Armories all morning waiting their turn to come before the examining board while at the entrance to the building nearly as great a number was present throughout the day.

Only five of the twenty men who were examined on Saturday were placed in class "A2," which indicates fitness to serve with a combatant unit. Three were class "B2" men, eligible for noncombatant units. The remaining twelve of the score were unfit for any branch of the army.

Utilities Commission Will Not Permit Council Reduction.

The utilities commission will not permit any reduction in its bill for street lighting, as apposed by the city.

The special lighting committee reported against paying for 193 span lights, saying that the commission agreed to maintain them for three years without charge. The commission claims that it will maintain them for three years without cost, provided the city pays a lump sum equal to that paid when the agreement was made. The commission would make money on this arrangement, and it will likely be refused.

SENTENCE DEFERRED

On Ball in Meantime. West London, was released on bail today to appear in one month for sen-tence for the theft of two baskets of eaches from the canadian Express Committee of 50 for Winter's Work Company's sheds at an early hour on Saturday morning. Edmonds pleaded guilty when the charge was read to him on Saturday, and was remanded intil today for sentence. been working in a local munition factory.

B. S. Murray, district manager of the express company gave Edmonds a good reputation.

The magistrate, in suspending senetnce, informed Edmonds that he felt disposed to deal with him leniently, but the prevalence of thefts from railway companies had grown to such an extent that he could not do otherwise than look upon the offence seriously.
Edmonds' wife, with an infant in arms, wept bitterly during the proceedings.

Bail was furnished by Edmonds' employer in part and his own recognizance ployer in part and his own recognizance accepted for the balance,
