Mrs. Killifer desired that the picture be hung to the right of the door; Mr.
Killifer wanted it hung to the left, relates Harper's. For once the husband proved to be the more insistent of the two, and Henry, the colored man, was summoned to hang the picture according to Mr. Killifer's order. Henry drove one in a nail on the left. This done, he asked Mr. Killifer, "Why, boss, dat's to save me de trouble of bringin' de ladder tomorrow when you come round to de missus' way of thinkin'," said Henry.

Mrs. Elizabeth Kelley of Bryn Mawr, testifying in court against Mrs. Charles Matt, her next door neighbor, complained: "It was bad enough, her beating up my youngsters while I was away working, but when she threw a brick through my window and then had the nerve to boost her daughter through the window to get the brick, so she could throw it again, I think she went too far."
