TELLING THE EXACT TRUTH....

There's a good deal of misrepresentation in advertising and a good deal of misrepresentation in selling goods. Poor truth is generally so weak that a man when he writes an advertisement thinks he's got to fib or waste his money. He knows you won't believe half he says, so he says it two or three times too big, it's the custom in advertising. When Mrs. Jones comes in the afternoon—a tedious neighbor—you greet her with "glad to see you."—The fibs of convenience and courtesy are a good deal like the fibs in advertising—nobody minds them.

Our circumstances—beginning a big business right in the face of other businesses, forced us to choose between the old-fashioned way of taking a lifetime to grow or working a year or two for almost nothing. Of course we'd rather work a while for almost nothing. We only need to set the case before you to be understood.

You can see for yourself whether we fib or not, when we say we're doing what nobody else is obliged to do—working for almost nothing and boarding ourselves. This particular business will be a revelation to Chatham before we get through, and everything we advertise is couched in exact language—No exaggeration! No tricks! No nonsense!

Buying cheaper makes selling cheaper, and having all the ready money we want makes buying easier. Between us and you and the gate post, we're having things very much our own way. One reason is, because we tell the truth about everything. Another reason is that we're not greedy about profit.

ELECTRICAL STORMS. TO BURN THE TOWN

They Have Been Doing a Little Bombardment of Their Own.

COMBER SUFFERS CONSIDERABLY—E. B. JONES' YACHT SHATTERED AND SUNK AT THE EAU—A BOLT FROM A CLEAR SKY.

Comber, June 20.—A terrific storm of wind and rain struck Comber on Saturday night and considerable damage was done. The tin roof of the Sellars block, about 60 feet square, was blown off and landed on top of a house on the opposite side of the street, knocking down a telegraph pole and breaking all the wires. The Sellars block is occupied as a hotel and post office, and much damage will be done the interior by the rain beating in. The damage to the block is estimated at three or four hundred dollars.

M. Laporte's house was struck by lightning, but not much damaged. No one was injured.

Several windows in Beattie's hardware store were broken by the wind and the skylight was blown off.

The entire roof of a freight car standing on the M. C. R. track was blown off. Several trees were uprooted also.

Telephone and telegraph business is suspended owing to the wires being broken, and there will be considerable work in repairing them.

The storm was also severe in the neighborhood and several trees were blown down, falling across the road. The dry-kilns of Pettit's mill, about five miles south, were also blown over.

OUT AT THE EAU.

E. B. Jones' Yacht Struck by Lightning and Wrecked.

A fierce electrical storm swept over the Eau Saturday night. When it had passed, Waterworks Superintendent Jones' yacht, the Bonnie Belle, was missing. She had gone down. The water was shallow, however, and yesterday morning Capt. Fellows, Mr. McLaren, of the Defiance, and others, went out to raise her. The gunwale was just above water and it did not look difficult to haul her out. After working half an hour, though, they found that there was as much water in the boat as ever. So they ceased work.

FROM A CLEAR SKY.

Gen. Lee's Stenographer. Struck by Lightning and Instantly Killed.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 20.—When about to go to bathing at Palm beach yesterday afternoon, Jas. T. Galswood, private stenographer to Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. Galswood was from Richmond, Va., and had been here about a week. The lightning came from a clear sky, hitting Galswood at the base of the brain and passing down the spinal column. Cabs, Robertson, of this city, was walking beside Galswood and was thrown to the ground; the lower part of his body being paralyzed. He recovered after a time, however.

FOUR LIVFS LOST

In Searching for the Valuable Cargo of the Pawatic.

The Search Has Extended Over Many Years—Two Victims of a Diving Bell.

Alpena, June 19.—The search for the cargo of the lost steamer Pawatic has resulted in the death of two more divers. The steamer Root, which has been working on the wreck with the Smith diving bell, came into port and her master reported that George G. Campbell, superintendent of the expedition, and Peter Olson, a sailor, had been drowned in the bell. The bell was sent down at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning with the two men inside. The men could be heard moving about the bell. Suddenly all sounds ceased. The anchor was slipped and the bell towed into the bay, getting to smooth water about 11 o'clock. Once out of the sea, the bell was hoisted aboard the Root and was found to be full of water.

Both men were drowned. Olson was sitting in his seat, his feet under the levers, showing that he had scarcely moved. The bell had filled through one of the windows, which was found broken. This window had been cracked earlier in the day and new glass was put in. It was probably forced in by the pressure of the water.

Mr. Campbell was a prominent and wealthy resident of Milwaukee, and was manager of the Centennial Bell foundry. He was 42 years old and leaves a widow and three children. Olson was not married and was about 30 years old. Four divers have lost their lives in efforts to secure the valuable cargo of the Pawatic. William Hike, of Buffalo, died from exposure in 1865, and Oliver Pelkey, of Ashland, became entangled in the wreck in 1881, and was pulled to the surface dead. Capt. Phelps, of the Root, declares that he would not lower another man in the bell for $10,000.
