As the judgment has been against Mr. Dale on all points, it is now to be hoped that he will see the which is as painful in itself as it is init rious to the best interests of the Church.

The Daily News observes that "it is hard to understand the mental attitude of a man who pertinaciously clings to an institution whose ordinances he cannot according to his own account, conscie tiously obey. . . However painful it may be to send Mr. Dale and Mr. Enraght bidding him from excession his duties as to prison, it is as gross a violation of th truth to describe them as confined for conscience sake, as it is to say that they are treated like felons.
