

GUESTS OF CANADA.

Arrival of Duke and Duchess of York at Quebec,

Where They Were Given a Most Enthusiastic Welcome by Thirty Thousand People.

Triumphal March Through the City—Grand Military Pageant—The Scene at the Parliament Buildings and Laval University—Addresses Presented—Receptions at Quebec and Montreal Declined by the Duke on Account of President McKinley's Death.

QUEBEC, Sept. 16.—At 9.30 this morning the royal yacht Ophir rounded Levis Point, and as her white prow showed past the point a plume of smoke shot out from the citadel which crowns Cape Diamond and the report boomed over the water. Then the big guns boomed out, and as the Quebec spoke other boats joined in the roaring chorus. The French cruiser Desaix was wreathed in smoke, from which flashes of flame joined and sharp reports were heard. The full twenty-one gun tribute to the royal party was paid by five cruisers and the fortress. When the smoke of firing had lifted it was seen that the salutes had been busy on board, for the ships from stem to stern were draped with flags. Then there was a flutter on the escorting cruisers, and in an instant they too were alive with shaking hulling. The crews of the cruisers stood to quarters, and on every deck there was a dark blue mass, relieved here and there by the scarlet of the marines. The scene as the five boats swept on to the anchorage of the citadel was a brilliant one. The only touch of sadness which marred the spectacle was the appearance of the Stars and Stripes on each of the boats, the royal yacht included, suspended at half-mast, in token of the sorrow shared by other nations for the United States in that country's bereavement. In the most business-like fashion the royal yacht and the cruisers took the stations assigned them, and at half-past ten a salute of fourteen guns from the ships and the shore announced that Lord Minto was on his way to carry Canada's greetings to the Duke.

At 11.45 the governor general landed, and at 12.30 fresh salutes of 21 guns announced that the Duke and Duchess were landing. They came ashore in their launch with their suite, landing on the special pontoon at King's wharf, where guards of honor from H. M. S. Crescent had been drawn up to receive them.

Having ascended the gangway leading from the pontoon to the wharf the route of the royal party lay over a carpeted board walk across the wharf to the street entrance, where carriages awaited them. This pathway, which was covered like the pontoon and the gangway in maroon colored cloth, was lined with men from the fleet. The portion of the wharf used for the official landing was comparatively small, being that immediately in rear of the office of the marine and fisheries department and was carefully fenced in on both sides.

THE DECORATIONS WERE SUPERB. As soon as their Royal Highnesses had entered their carriages the royal procession got under way for Parliament House. Three mounted policemen led the way, followed at intervals of twenty-five yards by the advance guard of the escort, consisting of three troopers and one sergeant, the sergeant scene was one never to be forgotten. All approaches to the buildings and the spacious grounds were filled with one great surging mass of humanity, and the brilliant play of colors in the sunlight was truly beautiful. It is estimated that at least 30,000 people were congregated around the buildings, and the contrast between the more sober dress of the civilians and the flashing accoutrements of the military was exceedingly striking. All approaches to the buildings and especially the drive leading through the handsome government arch to the main entrance on Parliament House, were lined with troops, who kept the eager crowds in the wide and open spaces over 1,000 school children occupied the immense stand to the right of the inside arches and saluted their Royal Highnesses with the strains of the national anthem as the carriages, with their postillions and outriders, and those of their suite swept up to the entrance. The national anthem was played by his honor the lieutenant governor and the mayor of Quebec, who conducted them, accompanied by their brilliant staff and that of the government, to the legislative council chamber. In the latter were gathered all the invited guests, including public notabilities, the beauty and fashion of the city and elite local society. Among other distinguished persons present were: The Archbishop of Quebec, Mgr. Begin, sitting side by side with the Anglican Bishop of Quebec, the Roman Catholic Bishop of Nicolet, St. Hyacinthe, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Patterson, Tarte, Davies, Scott, Sifton, and other federal ministers, members of the Quebec city council, the provincial minister, foreign consuls, commander and officers of the French frigate, the admiral and officers of the British fleet, Lady Minto, Lady Jette and Miss Jette, Lady Borden, the Hon. J. B. Borden, the royal party entered the chamber all rose to their feet and received them standing while

QUEBEC, Sept. 15.—A mourning state banquet was held at the Citadel. The toast of the King was the only one honored. The band of H. M. S. Crescent supplied music. About sixty sat down.

During the evening there was a grand display of all the city's public buildings being resplendent with lights. The Chateau Frontenac made the finest display of all its graceful lights, while the names of the Canadian history added interest to the sight. The warships were illuminated most effectively. A big choir gave a concert on the terrace, and the display of fireworks. The first day of Quebec's welcome has been a grand success.

STRIKE IS OVER, But Many Amalgamated Workers Are Very Angry.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 16.—It was a turbulent day for President Shaffer and the general officers of the Amalgamated Association. The headquarters of the organization were crowded from morning until evening with strikers and representatives of lodged where the mills are idle, and workers were awaiting word from the leader regarding the settlement of the strike. President Shaffer arrived in his office early in the day and remained until 10 o'clock tonight. He arranged to see individual delegations from each lodge under the promise that what they learned from him was to remain secret except when the subject was brought up in the lodge and was of public concern. The callers at the general offices were all more or less excited, and many were deeply incensed. Some of the strikers declared they would not respect the order calling the strike off until they were given full particulars of the settlement.

WAGES ALONE—Terms of Settlement Kept Secret.

Others were calling loudly for the resignation of President Shaffer, and another class demanded the withdrawal of their lodges from the organization. Other officials of the organization assured all that the settlement would not prove to be so bad as had been represented. President Shaffer announced that he did not think that it was necessary to make a statement. He said he was satisfied that the settlement would be satisfactory to the manufacturers, as they had given assurances that they would not reveal the conditions of the agreement. One of the officials other than the president said it was calling enough to be beaten without talking publicly about it.

THE GLOBE THINKS PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT HAS ALREADY SHOWN SUCH ABILITY THAT HE WOULD HAVE SUCCEEDED PRESIDENT MCKINLEY IN 1900, AND IS CONFIDENT THAT HE WILL BE A STRONG AND ABLE PRESIDENT.

THE LAST OF THE ONTARIO ELECTION PROTESTS.

OTTAWA, Sept. 16.—In the high court today the petition against the election of Blivins, a conservative, of Ottawa, was called, when the petitioner announced no evidence to offer and the case was dismissed. When the petitioner against Blivins, Liberal, called Friday, it is confident that he will be a strong and able president.

THE HANDY FOLDING RULE.

An Old Standby of the Mechanic in Greater Demand Than Ever.

"There's about a million different kinds of rules, and a dealer in hardware and tools, the rules being something of well nigh universal use in one form or another in pretty much all trades, but there's one kind of rule that we sell more of now than ever, this being the folding rule."

"There's plenty of rules that fold, the commonly known two-foot rule being a familiar example, but this particular old rule that I speak of is known by name as the folding rule."

"It is made in foot-long sections, in various lengths, ranging from two to ten feet, and over required, but three feet, five feet, six feet, seven feet, eight feet, and its total length folds up completely into a handle a foot long; the slats are thin, and folded up, even a ten-foot rule takes up like the rule in the pocket."

"Lots of people use folding rules, plumbers, for instance, in measuring pipes, and in measuring places for pipes, in measuring a distance greater than the spread of the arms, with a tape no man can reach, but one man can measure with a folding rule, and he can, single-handed, measure around corners, or in the angle of wall or ceiling, or in any other hard or crevice. We house, and we sell them to various other lots of men in measuring for wiring men, the six-foot rule being the one most commonly sold."

"WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—An interesting highlight of the funeral procession was the singing of 'Nearer My God to Thee' by a group of spectators just as the hearse containing the late president's remains passed the 6th street depot into Pennsylvania avenue. The air was taken up by the crowd and sung with feeling. Again as the hearse passed through the gateway of the White House the same strains were heard, sung by a number of people across the avenue."

"There's a distinguished scientist who says that, after all, there is nothing in 'germs.' 'Nothing in germs! Nonsense! Why, look how much the doctors have made out of them.'—Detroit Free Press.
