

The Semi-Weekly Telegraph.

NO. 6.

OLXII.

ST. JOHN, N. B. WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1902.

HOLM TELLS HOW ISAAC OULTON WAS MURDERED.

TRURO'S "BAD MAN" SHOTS WIFE AND MOTHER-IN-LAW.

THEN MORTON McNUTT TRIED SUICIDE; PRAYER FOLLOWED BY PROFANITY AS CLERGYMAN TALKED TO HIM; MOST SHOCKING AFFAIR IN THE TOWN'S HISTORY.

WIFE-BEATER, DRUNKARD—AND MURDERER.

St. John, N. B., Sept. 29.—(Special)—After a most sensational history of crime, the two persons lying at death's door are suffering severely, as a result of the act of a desperate would-be murderer and suicide.

NEW YORK'S LATEST MURDER HORROR; ASSASSIN TRIED TO BURN VICTIM'S BODY

New York, Sept. 27.—(Special)—A wealthy resident of Glen Cove (L. I.), was murdered today and his body decapitated in a "Federation" resort known as the Empire Garden cafe, in West 29th street, within a few doors of Broadway.

CITY OF BANGOR RUNS ON THE ROCKS, BUT PASSENGERS ARE SAFE; ONLY ONE HURT

Rockland, Me., Sept. 28.—The steamer City of Bangor, with 125 passengers on board, which left Boston on its regular trip last evening, ran into a dense fog early this morning when off Monhegan and at 2.30 a. m. struck on the ledges at the southeasterly end of the island.

"SUICIDE," SAYS THE JURY, IN THE WOODEN CASE.

Talk of Foul Play Made No Impression on the Jury, Who Said the Man Shot Himself, Though the Doctor Didn't Think So—No Poison Found—Stepson's Evidence About Mrs. Wooden Not Sustained by the Verdict.

CLERGYMAN REBUKED IN COURT BY THE WIDOW'S LAWYER.

Frederick Junction, Sept. 28.—(Special)—That Thomas Wooden came to his death from two bullet wounds inflicted by his own hand was decided today by the coroner's jury, which returned a verdict of suicide.

MRS. ROGERS IS A POISONER SAY THE JURYMEN.

Victoria County Woman Sentenced to Five Years' Imprisonment.

PERHAPS SHE KILLED ONE.

There is a Story That Her First Husband Was Murdered—Testimony Was Shocking—Much Feeling in New Brunswick Prevalent.

Grand Falls, N. B., Sept. 28.—(Special)—This morning Judge Hanington sentenced Andalusia Rogers to five years' imprisonment in Dorchester Penitentiary.

Pauser a Fire Bug.

Greene, Me., Sept. 28.—William Ellis, worth an inmate of the town farm, has been looking up at Lewiston after cutting in to getting fire to the town farm buildings today.

Two Hundred Dead; Loss $2,500,000.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 28.—A fresh storm burst over the district of Santa Maria today, and many houses were destroyed. It is now believed that 200 persons perished at Medina during the tornado.

CONVICT KNOWS WHO KILLED THE OLD MISER.

DOHERTY WAS NEAR AT HAND AND HOLM'S STORY INDICATES A CONNECTION BETWEEN THE DOUGLAS AVE. TRAGEDY AND HIGGINS' CRIME.

HE REVEALS A PLOT TO ROB THE OPERA HOUSE.

The Telegraph prints here with a most interesting addition to the history of the Oulton tragedy in the form of an interview with William Holm, who is serving a term in the Dorchester Penitentiary for his share in the Cullinan robbery, and who was not allowed to testify in the Higgins case.

Holm says Oulton was murdered and tells practically how the work was done, though he mentions no names. Some of the things he said are not printed here, The Telegraph believing it wise to withhold them and submit them to the proper authorities. Those who believe Oulton was murdered for his money, and that there was some connection between the old miser's death and that of Doherty, will find food for thought in the complacent remarks of Holm.

Holm's Attitude. "Doherty was not at Oulton's when Paddy Killen arrived the night the old fellow was murdered."

"But some people do not believe Oulton was murdered, Holm" was the reply of a Telegraph representative to the above assertion made by two-year term in the penitentiary for burglary.

"Oh, well; that bar is quite a feature in the case, isn't it? There were plenty of them in Oulton's house, but the one he was killed with was brought away by the man who struck the bed and threw him down on it. I don't think they meant to kill him, or else they would have brought the regular weapons."

"What about the bar mentioned at the inquest?" "Oh, well; that bar is quite a feature in the case, isn't it? There were plenty of them in Oulton's house, but the one he was killed with was brought away by the man who struck the bed and threw him down on it. I don't think they meant to kill him, or else they would have brought the regular weapons."

"Where you and Doherty in the North End at that time?" "Well, yes; Doherty and I might have taken a walk out that way that night; but, mark you, we didn't see each other. See?" "Do you think there was more than one person in the inside?" "No, but I would suppose that someone watched outside. When a fellow goes in for that sort of thing it's the worst thing he could do to let too many in on the game."

"Murderer Didn't Skip Out." "If a certain person was the guilty one, why didn't he skip out?" "Well, things were not against him at the inquest; and say, I'll give you a straight tip, a fellow's an awful fool to skip. That is the worst thing he could do to give himself away. Now do you think that party who spoke of Oulton had any relatives? He might have thought, you know, that he stood a good chance of getting Oulton's money or property, anyway."

"What is your opinion of the fire; was it accidental or otherwise?" "Oh, 'otherwise' I guess. It was likely started to obliterate all trace of the crime, for it is hard to find bruises on a charred body."

Band 9/22/18/6