It isn't the abuse that millionaires get that keeps most of us out of that class.

It is a waste of time to grasp an opportunity unless you know what you are going to do with it.

She thought she was a good girl, but she had been afflicted for over thirty years and tried all sorts of treatments in vain.

The pleasure of having cured myself of insomnia, remained the heavy-eyed man, is so great that I'll awake all night thinking about it.

Percy—Have you ever loved before? Ethel—No, Percy. I have often admitted men for their strength, courage, beauty, intelligence, or some thing like that; but with you, Percy, it is all love, nothing else!

How did it happen that your friends got the best of you? queried the inquisitive person.

They got busy while I was watching my scales, explained the man who had got the short end of it.

Prevention is Worth While.

When you consider the risk to life, the expense, the anxiety, which is involved in an attack of appendicitis and a surgical operation is certainly worth while to avoid it by keeping the liver and bowels regular by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

What has done man one day, remarked the party with the quotation habit.

Yes, rejoined the benighted with an open-faced sigh, but it's never half as much as his wife expects him to do.

An irate mother had her little son by the ear and held a menacing cane. 'I'll learn ye to tie a kettle to the cat's tail!' she exclaimed wrathfully.

The minister regarded his congregation with the light of a happy thought on his countenance.

'Next Sunday he said, "I will preach from the choir loft."

There was a stir in the church, and the most understanding ladies coughed.

'Yes,' the minister added, 'and this will be continued until the style in hats once more enables my congregation to see me standing here.'

Smithson used to labor under the impression that he was a hard humorist, but he has given up trying to be funny now.

He called one day on an old school friend, and was shown into a room where his school's water was busy arranging a quantity of dried grass which she had collected.

'What a quantity of dried grass you have collected, Miss Ritchie!' he said. 'Then his humor burst forth. "Nice room for a doorknob to get into!"

'Make yourself home, Mr. Smithson,' said the girl, pleasantly. 'When he arrived home all the humor was expunged out of him.

Do the Hard Things First.

Suspended above the desk of a Pittsburgh bank president is this motto: Do the Hard Things First.

'How did you climb so fast?' I asked. 'I lived up to the text,' he replied. 'Tell me about it.'

'There's not much to tell. I was not long being conscious that I was not getting on as fast as I should. I was not keeping up with my work; it was so distasteful to me. When I opened my desk in the morning and found it covered with the reminders of the work to be done during the day I became discouraged. There were always plenty of comparatively easy things to do and these I did first, putting off the disagreeable duties as long as possible. Result: I became intellectually lazy. I felt an increasing incapacity for my work. One morning I woke up. I took stock of myself to find out the trouble. Memoranda of several matters that had long needed my attention stared at me from my calendar. I had been carrying them along with me from day to day. Enclosed in a rubber band were a number of unanswered letters which necessitated the looking up of certain information before the replies could be sent. I had tried for days to ignore their presence.

'Suddenly the thought came to me: "I have been doing only the easy things; by postponing the disagreeable tasks, the mean, annoying little things my mental muscles have become flabby; they must get some exercise." I took off my coat and proceeded to "clean up." It wasn't half as hard as I expected. Then I took a card and wrote on it: "Do the Hard Things First," and put it where I could see it every morning. I have been doing the hard things first ever since.'

'I have been doing only the easy things; by postponing the disagreeable tasks, the mean, annoying little things my mental muscles have become flabby; they must get some exercise.'

Breeding Poultry.

A writer to the Farmer's Advocate in discussing the breeding of poultry says: 'I have been a breeder of Barred Plymouth Rocks, Single Combed Brown Leghorns, and Single Combed Black Minorcas for a number of years, and have found from experience in handling one or all of these breeds, that you get more healthy chickens from pullets mated to a yearling cock bird, or from hens mated to the cockerel, than from pullets mated to cockerel, or hens mated to a cock bird. In no case use birds in the breeding pen that are not well matured, and in all cases use the healthiest birds. I always like to keep the sexes separated until a month before mating.'

A failing tiny nerve no larger than the finest silver thread—takes from the heart its impulse, its power, its regularity. The stomach also has its hidden, or inside nerve. It was Dr. Sheep who first told us as it was wrong to drug a weak or failing stomach, heart or kidneys. His prescription—Dr. Sheep's Resolvent—is directed straight for the cause of these ailments—these weak and faltering inside nerves. This no doubt clearly explains why the Resolvent has so rapidly gained its popularity. Druggists say that those who take the Resolvent even for a few days soon become fully convinced of its wonderful merit. Anyway, don't drug the organ. Treating the cause of sickness is the only sensible and successful way. Sold by A. V. Hand.

An attempt to draw the color line quite a new departure in England, met with a signal failure at Birmingham, where an effort was made to exclude a negro student of the local school. The incident aroused a heated controversy. The students took up the negro's cause, and hired a lawyer to oppose the renewal of the school's license. The management of the school apologized in court, and promised not to make any race distinction in the future.

A single instrument out of tune can spoil all the music that ever was played by an orchestra. So a single boy or girl out of tune, either in class or at home, can spoil all the pleasure and comfort of both. Let us 'tune up' and keep in tune, if we really want to add to the world's music.—The King's Own.

INDIGESTION IS SLOW STARVATION.

Food is to the human body what fuel is to a furnace. Without the aid of food the body starves and dies, just as a furnace here dies, grows cold, when not supplied with fuel. Indigested food means, so long as it lies in the stomach it is fermenting—giving off noxious gases and acid fluids that poison the blood and bow with it all through the system. You cannot be healthy in such a condition. You must surely lack the snap, the energy of mind and muscle, the vigor of brain and body, which are necessary to the enjoyment of life's good things—its work and play. There is no enjoyment for the man or woman whose stomach is out of order. When your liver fails to supply nourishment through rich red blood, you are being starved inasmuch as you have nothing to eat—only yours is slow starvation. Mother's Relief's Syrup, the great remedy for indigestion, has led so many to increasing income all over the world, by restoring the organs of digestion to perform their work naturally, it has done more for the world's health than any other medicine. We have thousands of letters attesting such cures. Here is one from Mrs. James A. Flacey of Overton, P. O. Thompson Co., P. I., who writes: "Anger, cold, took away—over the years I have been troubled with nervous headaches, without obtaining any relief from prescription. I was advised to try "Mother's Relief's Syrup," and the trouble ceased after King's course of your reliable preparation, and I am now as healthy as ever." 'It is Nothing to Me.' 'Tis nothing to me, the beauty said. With a careless toss of her pretty head. 'The man is weak who can't refrain From the cup you say is fraught with pain.' It was something to her in after years. When her eyes were drenched in burning tears. And she watched in lonely grief and dread. And started to bear a staggering tread. 'It's nothing to me,' the mother said. 'I have no fear that my boy will tread The downward path of sin and shame. And crush my heart and darken my name.' It was something to her when her only son. From the path of life was early won. And madly quaffed the glowing bowl. Then—a ruined body and shipwrecked soul. 'It's nothing to me,' the merchant said. As over the ledger he bent his head. 'I'm busy to-day with tare and ret. I have no time to fume and fret.' It was something to him when over the wire A message came from a funeral pyre— A drunken conductor had wrecked the train— His wife and child were among the slain. 'It's nothing to me,' the young man cried; In his eye was a flash of scorn and pride. 'I heed not the dreadful things you tell. I can rule myself, I know full well. 'Twas something to him when in prison he lay. The victim of drink, life ebbing away. As he thought of his wretched child and wife. And the mournful wreck of his wasted life. —Author Unknown.

The Power of Influence. The story is told of a piece of personal work done by Gladstone. He became interested in a couple of young men who had gone wrong. They were rapidly establishing reputations as drunkards. He made up his mind to do something in them. He asked them to call at Hawarden Castle. They felt honored and accepted the invitation. In the library he spoke to them of the evil that was degrading them and bringing sorrow and humiliation to their families and friends. He appealed to them to re-assert their manhood and triumph over their evil passions. They responded to his appeal. Then he knelt down and asked God to help them in their new and high resolve to lead a better life. One of the men said years afterwards: "Never can I forget this scene, and as long as I live the memory of it will be indelibly impressed on my mind. The Grand Old Man was profoundly moved by the intensity of his solicitation. My companion is now a prominent minister, and neither of us has touched a drop of intoxicating drink since, nor are we ever likely to violate an undertaking so impressive as that of Mr. Gladstone's library." Nobody can measure the influence of a personal appeal. It will bear fruit some time and in some way. God will use it wisely when the time comes.—Selected.

Uncle Sam and the Saloon-keeper. Once Uncle Sam called upon the saloon-keeper, says Amos R. Wells in the "Christian Endeavor World." 'I have been hearing bad words about you and your establishment,' said Uncle Sam, 'and I've a big one to close up your whole business.' Then the saloon-keeper was greatly distressed and at once took Uncle Sam out in front of his magnificent building and showed him the things you see pressing in 'the bow well'—Cressed and respectable they are, urged the saloon-keeper. 'Why, none of the first families in town patronize my establishment.' 'That he showed' Uncle Sam the great driver loaded with grain that was rushing toward his distillery, the stamp of workmen employed in brewery, distillery and saloon, the Hospital Robbed of its Victim

Doctors said a surgical operation was necessary but the woman escaped. Many a time the hospitals have been cheated of their victims by the timely use of some medicine of more value than any that the doctors could give.

In this case the trouble was with the liver and kidneys and the doctors could see no hope except by a surgical operation. Cures were brought about, however, by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Read the lady's letter:

Mrs. F. O. Bacon, Baldwin's Mills, Que., writes: "I was very sick last spring. The doctors said I must go to the hospital for an operation because my liver and kidneys would not act. I did not want to go, so I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills ever since and nothing else. I am feeling well now and doing my own work for a family of seven. I believe there is no equal for stomach trouble. I had acute indigestion and these pills and nothing else made me well."

This is the kind of cures that have the steady in thousands of homes for complicated troubles of the digestive system. Our pills do more, it exists in all, at dealers or Edmundson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

great stream of money kept in brisk motion by the enterprise, and a thousand evidences of thrift. 'Why, Uncle Sam, cried the saloon-keeper in triumph, this industry of mine is by all odds the most important in your entire domain. It keeps hundreds of workmen busy every day, and if you should shut up my establishment you would ruin the farmers and railroads and the machine-shops and the laboring classes.'

Uncle Sam stood for a minute with his chin in his hand, and then he looked up with a sharp eye. 'There is a front side and a back side to every business. You have shown me what goes 'in' to your establishment. Now will you please show me what comes 'out'?' I have learned to estimate a business not by the raw material, but by the product. Conduct me to the rear of your establishment.'

But this the saloon-keeper strenuously refused to do. Why? Because he was unwilling to have the products of the saloon seen. They would frighten the young away from his saloon. 'Thousands of bright men, professional men, prosperous men transformed into drunkards. Thousands of boys ruined for life. Poverty, vice, crime, sorrow, sickness, pain, early deaths, ruined homes, miserably untold.

Statistics in Medicines. OLD REMEDIES RETAIN THEIR POPULARITY. Investigation by French Physicians Show that Large Production of Synthetic Medicines is Not Crowding Out the Old Favorites. A late despatch from Paris says: Prof. Grimbert presented a notable paper before the Academy of Medicine on therapeutic tendencies in the last ten years. Basing his figures on medicines furnished to 270 large pharmacies and hospitals by the State Pharmacy, he finds that the old-fashioned medicines retain their popularity. An expert authority on being interviewed states that the tendencies of the medical profession in Canada are along exactly the same lines. He gives the following old-fashioned vegetable mixture as the safest and best treatment of all stomach and liver troubles, constipation, disorder of the kidneys and bladder, and states that many of the leading physicians use these ingredients in some form, often by some fancy and expensive name:— Fluid Extract Cascara..... 1/2 oz. Syrup Rhubarb..... 1 oz. Compound Syrup Sennaparticles 5 oz. Take one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime. This acts in a pleasant way, and is free from the bad effects of strong purgatives and cathartics. We advise all our readers to cut this valuable formula out and use it. Any druggist can supply these ingredients at a small expense. You can mix them at home if you prefer.

'The value to himself of a man's religion lies in the degree to which it gives life a meaning. If it does not enrich his life it is doing him no good.'

'Little words, not eloquent speeches; little deeds not miracles or battles, nor one great heroic or mighty martyrdom, make up the Christian life.'—Bonar.
