HYDROPHOBIA VICTIMS. Boy Bitten by a Cat Dies in Drea ful Agony. Paris, Jan. 13.-A police court ha t pronounced judgment in a mad dog sent by her parents to buy a jug of wine at a wine ne rehant's in the Rud d'Allenew representatives began to at a wine merchant's in the Rud d'Alle-magne. As the girl went down into the cellar a dog belonging to the wine mer chant's wife flew at her and bit her severely on the lip.

chant's wife few at her and bit her severely on the lip.

The wine merchant's wife took the girl hone to her purents, and not to frighten them said nothing about the dog, but stated that the girl had fallen down stairs with a wine bottle in her hand and had cut herself. After this the dog bit several other people and was ultimately declared to be mad and was killed. Twenty six days afterward the little girl died of rabies, and on October 15 Grisey, the cart driver showed all the symptoms of hydrophobia. He could not swallow any liqued. He saw terrible images of dogs and horses and used to jump about on all lours, snapping, growing and barking like a dog. On October 24 he died in fearful agony. The wine merchant's wile was arrested and charged with homicide through her carelessness. The judges severely reprimanded her for not having the dog at once tied up after it had bitten the little girl and for having it agong is already.

In his case the wound was not cauterized, but healed naturally, and no ill effects have yet shown themselves. When the cold weather set in the lad began to suffer badly, and on Tuesday last his father took him to the Charing Cross hospital. The boy rejected a cup of milk his sister offered him. While being driven to the hospital he was haunted by an imaginary black cat, against which he made frantic efforts to defend himself. He had repeated spasms after his admission into the hospital and refused to drink water from a cup, but lapped it up

Loxbox, Jan. 13.—A coroners' jury sat upon the body of the lad Gregory, who died as cabled yesterday, in Charing Parmell's dictum, to be no more binding cross hospital, of hydrophobia. The facts were elicited as follows: Gregory, enforce payments by legal means, are to whose age was 13, while playing with other lads in the gutter last September, lespied a cat, pulled her tail and was bitten on the thumb. His mother took Hartington's father, owning 60,000 acress him to the hospital the same evening some hours after he had been bitten, and of the Irish defence union. The most had the wound cauterized. It had healed, urgent appeals have resched the govern. some hours after he had been bitten, and had the wound cauterized. It had healed, but the lad complained constantly of pain in the hand. Dickenson was also bitten. In his case the wound was not cauterized, declares, with all solemnity, that it re-
