Bank of Montreal suspect

Two armed robberies in Mississauga within four hours have netted thieves a total of $1,850.

A bandit escaped with $1,600 in cash from the Bank of Montreal in the Dixie Plaza after saying to a teller, "We know where you live."

Police say the man entered the bank minutes before 3 p.m. closing Thursday and waited in line with other customers.

When he reached the teller, he moved his arm to indicate he had a gun and ordered her to hand over the money.

Because of his threat that he had other accomplices in the bank, the teller waited until he left before sounding the alarm.

Police sealed off the area within minutes, but no vehicle was spotted leaving the scene.

The suspect is described as in his late teens or early twenties, five feet, nine inches, about 170 pounds.

He has dark hair, a protruding lower jaw and was wearing a three-quarter length dark blue or black raincoat.

Detective-sergeant Roy Crozier and detective Noel Catney are continuing the investigation.

Four hours later a second bandit entered the Consumers Distributing store at 93 Dundas St. E., less than a half-mile from the Mississauga police station.

The man spent some time examining rings in a showcase, then went up to the store cashier and demanded money.

Police say he pulled back his coat and showed the cashier the butt of a revolver in his trousers. Again there was a delay of several minutes before the alarm was sounded, and the gunman escaped with $250.

The suspect is described as between five feet, eight inches and five feet, ten inches, about 170 pounds, and with dark brown or black hair worn below the ears.

He had a mustache and was wearing a black and red lumber-style jacket and a dark shirt with blue jeans.

Don't get taken in

Many Mississauga merchants and small-business owners, approached by promoters in the last few weeks, have purchased advertising in a "police safety" booklet under the mistaken impression the publication has been endorsed by Peel Regional Police.

Inspector Des Rowland, head of the fraud squad, stresses "this force does not solicit funds for advertisement or any other purposes."

He adds that "from time to time throughout the year certain advertisements are promoted, and in order to stay within the law the promoter provides a minimal service for the individuals while producing an exorbitant profit for himself."

Rowland says honest charities need and deserve donations from the public, but "no one wants to donate freely to the pockets of those who take advantage of their goodwill and use such funds for their own advantage."

Police caution advertisers to check the validity of all requests for charitable donations or soliciting for advertising in "public-service" publications.

The police safety guide is a cheaply-printed collection of line drawings illustrating various traffic rules, interspersed with advertisements for small businesses.

Many persons of this advertising believed they were participating in an official police safety program.

Authority praised as 50% pay hike proposed

By JOHN STEWART

Credit Valley Conservation Authority has operated in past "almost on voluntary help in my opinion," says councillor Hazel McCallion.

"It's a tribute to you people who did all the work," said Mrs. McCallion as the authority dealt with the budget which proposes an increase of over 50 per cent in total staff salaries.

"We didn't have the staff in the past," Mrs. McCallion said. "We've come under criticism because we held the expenses down and have not added to the staff."

"The job can't be done as in the past. You inspected and administered the landfill regulations on the best information you had. But you didn't have the professional input that was essential."

"That's no reflection on the past. The voluntary contribution has been second to none."

Mrs. McCallion said she couldn't ignore the "huge void" she saw in staff salaries and the CVCA.

"I can't vote to keep the salaries down here when the salary schedule is so high in Mississauga."

"We pay people with less responsibility in Mississauga, $5,000, $6,000 and $7,000 more than they make here without blinking an eye," she said.

Mrs. McCallion felt that in comparison with the city, the CVCA staff were still underpaid even with the increases this year. The highest staff salary at the authority in 1975 will fall in the 13th of 22 salary levels in the city of Mississauga.

Authority chairman Roy McMillan touched off Mrs. McCallion's remarks by questioning the authority's approval of healthy raises plus a cost-of-living bonus of up to 10 per cent.

McMillan also praised the staff's contribution over the years and paid tribute to Robert Parker of Acton, a charter member of the authority who is leaving after 20 years. "He's one of the most valuable men I've ever worked with," he said.

McMillan indicated he may be stepping down as chairman in the new year. He has been on the authority for 17 years and is a former Mississauga town councillor.

The chairman called 1974 a very frustrating year for the authority because of delays in projects such as the Mississauga Waterfront Plan and the Terra Cotta swimming pool.

"But those things are still alive and I hope we can get them on the road next year," he said.

Architect joins 'The Order'

Architect and planner Anthony Adamson of Mississauga has been made an officer of The Order of Canada.

Adamson, who has co-authored three books, has been a lecturer in the history of architecture and associate professor of the Town Planning at the University of Toronto.

He was the designer of Upper Canada Village and the president of the Town Planning Institute from 1949-50.

Adamson, whose family has lived on the Adamson estate on Lake Ontario shoreline just east of Port Credit since 1808, served as a Toronto Township councillor for 10 years and was reeve in 1953 and 1954.

He has also been chairman of the Peel Children's Aid Society, vice-chairman of the National Capital Commission, chairman of the Ontario Welfare Council,

Also honored as a companion of the Order in the announcements was Dr. J. Tuzo, who was, until recently, principal of Erindale College. He is now director general of the Ontario Science Centre.

Keep eye on children

Christmas is the most hazardous time of the year for leaving small children alone for even short periods, Mississauga fire chief Joe Miller warns.

"Decorations, trees and wrapping paper bring an increased threat of fire unless constant care is exercised," he said.

Miller urged parents to recognize fire dangers and not leave children unattended for even a moment.

He reminded residents that the safest Christmas tree is one with the butt in water. A dried-out tree can blaze violently in a few seconds, he warns.
