

ILLUSTRATIONS

“‘Go, I say!’ cried the Leopard Woman. ‘And hold up your head. If this is suspected of you, you will surely die’ ” . . . Frontispiece
(See page 168)

FACING PAGE

“‘If you will ride in a hammock, you ought to teach your men to shoot,’ was Kingozi’s greeting” . . . 40

“After the flat crack of the rifle a hollow plunk indicated that the bullet had told” . . . 66

“Their eyes were large with curiosity as to this man and woman of a new species . . . Kingozi touched his lips to the tembo” . . . 122

“‘Cazi Moto, take this stick and make on the ground marks exactly like those on the barua. Make them deep, so that I may feel them with my hands’ ” . . . 180

“The search party found Winkleman, very dirty, quite hungry, profoundly chagrined” . . . 282

“At the top of the hill the guide stopped and pointed. Kingozi gathered that through the distant cleft he indicated the strangers must come” . . . 300

“So intent was the Leopard Woman on the examination and on Kingozi that she seemed utterly unconscious of the men standing over opposite . . . A more startlingly exotic figure for the wilds of Central Africa could not be imagined” 308