

The Barometer

Of the body is the secretion from the kidneys. When that is clouded, or shows a brick-dust deposit, look out for trouble in the human system. Heed the warning, or soon it will be too late. Keep the kidneys in good working order if you would have health and vigor. The best kidney regulator is

Bu-Ju

It stimulates weakened, clogged or overworked kidneys to healthy action and the result is soon manifested in the improved condition of the entire system.

PURSUITS OF MONEY.

SEVERE REBUKE TO MEN WHO MAKE GOLD THEIR GOD.

Points for the Consideration of Those Who Sacrifice Everything to Gain It.
—New Tough the Old Man Is, Say Children of Their Father, Whose Wealth They Wish to Spend Unhindered.

Following is the text of a sermon that has attracted much attention and that was delivered by Rev. D. C. Hossack of Deer Park, Toronto, to his congregation a Sunday or two ago.

"It cannot be denied that the love of money leads to corruption and crime. A man who has loaned a small sum and who has received a comparatively large amount as interest inquired of a friend what rate of interest he had made. This friend replied that the Babbage calculating machine had demonstrated that at certain points in progressive numbers the law governing them changes, and that long before his rate of interest would pass out of percentage and into larceny.

"The desire for money is a great source of evil. In the United States the Government report indicates that in one year 6,536 weights and measures had been found incorrect. It has been said that if a Boston merchant had the privilege of selling the Atlantic he would cheat in measuring it by the quart. It has been estimated that the United States loses more than half a million dollars a year by the use of a second-hand postage stamps. During one year there passed between Britain and the United States and Canada 14,000 newspapers containing correspondence. A convict making shoes by order of the Government was instructed to place pasteboard between the soles, where there should have been sound leather and, as he toiled, he may have thought of the blind leading the blind or Satan reproving sin.

Unable to Enjoy Life.

The love of money has a demoralizing effect and makes men think that beyond the pursuit of money there is nothing worthy of attention. The pursuit of money dulls the moral sensibilities and makes dim the spiritual vision. A blind man passing through a picture gallery cannot see the pictures, and if he never had sight cannot imagine their beauty. Not only are they who pursue money unable to enjoy the pleasures of life, but they place themselves beyond the possibility of enjoying other pursuits. They become warped by greed, and as the aged are seldom able to engage in the pursuits of youth, they cannot appreciate the nobler pursuits of life which might once have been theirs.

"Every occupation is a little world in itself. There are pleasures peculiar to it and a philosophy that is its own. The lumberman sees the beauty of the primeval forest with its pines and hemlocks murmuring in the breeze, the snow of winter and the grass of summer. The breath of the balsam is for him and the peace of the mighty solitude. The sailor has in his world the dark blue ocean and the glory of God's works upon the sea. "They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters, these see the works of the Lord, and his wonders in the deep." Many in their little world fail to see the beauty, to learn the lessons, and to appreciate the philosophy; and of none may this be so truly said as of them who make haste to be rich and are blinded by their desires.

Striking With a Split Stick.

"Men think that the money is theirs, forgetting that it is God's. The image is Caesar's, the gold is God's; and for its use men must account to God.

"By many, success is supposed to atone for faults and to determine merit. What error! What is success in the market place? A number of men combine, rightly believing that in union there is strength. They obtain a corner on some commodity and advance the price higher than it has been for years. They think they are safe because they are in control, and have they not pledged their word to stand together? But one rogue breaks his word and sells and sells while the price is rising. The combination is broken, and the rogue who was false has made millions, his portrait is in the magazines and he is applauded as an able financier and a success. But he is only a liar and a cheat. Cheating injures the cheat as well as the victim. Cheating is like striking with a split stick; it hurts the person struck and stings the hand that delivers the blow.

"In the pursuit of gold a man often begins well, but the love of money grows until it is a fire within him and he falls into temptation and a snare. At first he promises well, he will aid his family; he will be charitable; he will be a public benefactor. But he grows in his desire to be rich faster than he can afford, like the tree that makes wood too rapidly, and when he becomes rich he cannot properly control his wealth, for his nature has changed, he has become vulgar and coarse and will not do what he promised and what he intended to do.

"The greed for money prevents men from taking advice, and they feel that while others have perished, disaster is not for them and they will succeed. The minister may warn them from the pulpit and they report that he had better confine his attention to preaching the gospel, and not discuss what he does not understand. Their old fathers warn them, and they say that times have changed, that old, worn-out cures methods are useless now. The old merchant advises caution, and they declare that they must be abreast of the times.

Wealth Grinds Money Lover.
"A man learns to live with his money, thinks of it, glazes over it and is fascinated by it. The love of wealth grinds him as a grindstone the backache, the nervousness and other ills which are the result of womanly diseases.

"I suffered from female weakness for five months," writes Miss Belle Hedrick, of Nye, Putnam Co., W. Va. "I was treated by a good physician but he never seemed to do me any good. I wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce for advice, which I received, telling me to take his 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' When I had used the medicines a month, my health was much improved. It has continued to improve until now I can work at almost all kinds of housework, but I still have gained several pounds in weight. Dr. Pierce's medicines have done wonderfully well here. I would advise all who suffer from chronic diseases to write to Dr. Pierce."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accepts no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. whats steel. On the farm the grindstone was placed in the shade of the apple tree and at the noon hour the scythes were ground. A man is ground and sharpened by money. He begins to look at other men to calculate how much he may cut from them.

"What evil springs from the love of wealth? It breeds extravagance. Having made money and lived in splendid and extravagant fashion, men begin sometimes to fail, and when reduced in wealth they dare not curtail their expenditure, for a reduction in the cost of living would arouse the suspicion of watchful creditors or competitors. How many are living in gorgeous and extravagant misery!

"In the race for gold there is intense excitement, and, feeling the need of stimulant, men crave drink and with drink come other evils.

New Tough the Old Man Is.

"The love of money makes the heart hard and callous, and the bond of affection which unites the family will be destroyed. Children lose both love and respect for their father's money. How tough the old man is! Who would have thought he would have lived so long! There never was trouble in the home before; there is trouble previous to his father's death; there is trouble when he dies; the will is contested in a suit at law; and discord is king.

Money, if properly used, is a blessing. It is a good servant and a poor master. It may be an aid to happiness, but it is a curse will not bring it. Loving kindness, genuine sympathy, unadulterated taste and freedom from dissipation will bring happiness when wealth will fail. If a man has an old father, mother or any helpless relative depending upon him, it is his duty to lay up money to provide for them. Money, thus used, is a blessing. It may be foolish to lay up money for sons who, knowing of it, will not apply themselves to any honest toil; money then is a curse.

"Money is a blessing or a curse according to its use. It is like gravel, for if it is in a great heap it will impede travel; and if it is applied to the highways it will benefit all. It is like water, for in rain it will cause the earth to blossom, and in a flood it will destroy. In itself money is a good thing, for it may relieve distress and make a land smile with plenty. Many use it well, and men and women who have been sitting in great darkness."

The Doctor Leads Him by the Nose

Ninety-nine hearts out of a hundred are filled to do their work. There may be no pain there, but it is felt somewhere for some organ is robbed of its proper need of blood by this insidious heart failure, and distress follows. Common sense says, cure where the trouble and pain begin. Use

DR. AGNEW'S HEART CURE, because it begins at the blood's distributing organ, beating that rapidly and making it strong and able, quickly sends strength and health to every other organ. It is the only way that combines science and sense and relieves and cures.

HENRY AXEY, of Peterboro, Ont., writes: "I suffered with my heart, nerves and general debility. The best doctors said I must die within a month. On my wife's advice I tried DR. AGNEW'S HEART CURE. Relief from the first dose. I am fully cured. Weighed 128 pounds—now 160 pounds."

DR. AGNEW'S HEART CURE will drive the blood away from the heart, and restore it to its normal condition. It is the only medicine that cures all kinds of heart troubles, such as heart failure, etc., without pain or danger. It is the only medicine that cures all kinds of heart troubles, such as heart failure, etc., without pain or danger. It is the only medicine that cures all kinds of heart troubles, such as heart failure, etc., without pain or danger.

THE NEW MOWN MAY.

Along the shaded lane concession way
At sundown, when the sky turns grey,
The dew drops down and sucks aloft
The small elusive, subtle, soft,
Of new-mown hay.

The farmer boy—his feet may far off stray
Down many a weary, strange and heated way—
It helps a headache if he smells
Even in a dream the breath that swells
From new-mown hay.

How many perfumes come and go, but they
Are half forgotten in the freshening day—
On mountain, mere, on sand and sod
There is no smell this side of God
Like new-mown hay.

SUMMER READING.

A View of the Subject That Much May Be Said in Favor Of.

English weeklies, one and all lament over the decline of literary taste and pursuits in England; and a great deal of the depression in the book trade they ascribe to the rage for "bridges" within the house, and out-of-door pastimes. Now we are inclined to think that the rage for "speed" is at the root of the evil, says The Toronto News. It has destroyed the taste for books in several ways, and, first and foremost, by bringing the art of writing down to the level of "book making." The rate at which authors are expected to conceive, arrange, and develop their wares has resulted in an immense quantity of unwholesome food being put on the market. Literary indigestion is the outcome. The men and women who rush madly through the air in their motor cars, who fly from city to country in yachts, who are forever receiving new impressions which obliterate those of the moment before, can have no possible corner in their receptive brain-cells left for the written impressions which have taken even months to ripen.

Let Canadians rejoice that nature and circumstances have not yet handed our people in the vortex of speed. We may safely look forward to at least a month or three weeks of weather, when the strenuous President of the United States would be compelled from sheer muscular relaxation to "put on the brakes." The state of the roads in Canada preclude the chance of the motor car disturbing the tranquility of the inhabitants, and endangering the lives of the live stock of rural Canada. There will be hot days in July and August when, for some hours at least, a "shady nook and well-bound book" will be the only possible solution of existence. Lampanian has drawn a picture of an ideal Canadian summer's day in his poem "Heat."

"In the sloped shadow of my head,
I lean at rest, and drain the heat;
Nay more, I think some blessed power
Has brought me wandering idly
here;
In the full furnace of this hour
My thoughts grow keen and clear."

The quality of brain power during the mid-summer heat is exactly that of all that is best in literature. Business, for the average Canadian is fairly at a standstill. Households are not run at concert pitch. The intellectual, rather than the intelligent, portion of the human mechanism is in the ascendant. Out of door lounging is conducive to reverie, and the absorption of abstract ideas. "It is in the fight and battle of life we learn and grow, and during the hours of rest and lassitude that we gain understanding, that makes the fullness of life."

A big library in a summer house is a mistake; one or two good books, a magazine or two, and the daily paper, will suffice. But a summer devoid of books, even for those who are indefatigable readers during the rest of the year, is a mistake, for the very quality of intellectual power which comes with what Lampanian calls the "full furnace of the hour" is one for which the most casual, as well as the most devout book-lover, may be thankful, as all Canadians may be thankful for a climate which insists upon their enjoying sylvan as well as intellectual pleasures at the same period.

One Theory of Music.

He was whistling "Annie Laurie" while he worked. Now, Annie Laurie was apparently a lovely girl, and her music is captivating, but she's not slow and this particular worker was whistling her about as slow as the "Dead March," and his hand kept time. He was only polishing a door plate, but it would have been all the same had he been doing anything else, for music has a subtle influence over the human soul, and through that over the human body. When the general wants to cheer his troops up he doesn't start the band playing mournful airs, when he wants his troops to step quickly he has the band play lively airs.

It seems to me that if I were an employer of labor, which I probably will be if I live to be about a million, I'd have a band hired to stay around the factory and play lively airs, and if I couldn't have a band I'd rent a piano and get some girl to play ragtime melodies and jigs and two-steps, and I think that besides giving the hands pleasure the experiment would pay me because the hands would keep time with the music.—H.D.C., in Toronto Star.

The Abitibi Waterpowers.

Mr. Vaughan Roberts, C. E., D. L. S., has just returned from exploring some of Ontario's North Lands. As a sample of Ontario's great natural wealth he instances the Abitibi River, which at a distance of a hundred miles from its junction with the Moose averages four hundred feet in width, contains numbers of magnificent water powers, awaiting development, varying from 15,000 to 150,000 horse power each. The banks of the river are lined with the best of pulpwood of all descriptions, which is practically valueless, however, until it is made available by the construction of a railway into the territory.
