Measure Regarding Lemieux Act and Penitentiaries Act Go Routine.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, March 28.—Two bills re-ceived their third reading in the House of Commons this afternoon. The first was the measure introduced by Hon. James Murdock, minister of labor, to clear up the interpretation of the Lemieux act by providing ex-plicitly that there should be no re-duction of pay within industries covered by the act except after an inquiry of a board of investigation. This bill was passed by the House last year, but subsequently amended by the Senate in a manner which was rejected by the Senate in a manner which was rejected by the Commons.

The second bill given a third reading contains amendments to the perijustice. The first amendment purports to give the warden and his officers power to prevent the escape and bay.

There was a claim against the Austin Nicholson Lumber Company of $2.831,529 for trespass on crown lands and under-scaling of logs. The Drury government had reduced the claim to $1,336,000, but it was not met. Then Arthur Roebuck was en-gaged to get a settlement. He secured a settlement for $28,880. "A decrease of 90 per cent?" 'commented Mr. Mageau. "Yes," said the minister, "and the agreement was drawn up by Mr. Roebuck and Nicholson was forced almost at the point of a pistol to sign it. He was told that his company would not receive a permit to cut timber upless it resid a permit to cut timber unless it paid the claim. Even after all this, which happened in August, 1922, the gov-ernment had not collected that $28,-880 when it want out of 880 when it went out of power, although Mr. Roebuck had been paid $7,000 for his services."

Mr. Lyons said he had a sworn affidavit from Mr. Nicholson that he was forced to sign the agreement under penalty of not securing fur-ther permission to cut timber.
