The Mysteries of French Domination. Cor. of the Winnipeg Sun. OTTAWA, April 27 .- Some light is being thrown upon the Ouimet mystery. It appears that both Col. Ouimet and Amyot are Chap-leauites and opponents of Col. Caron as minister of militia, who is the dominion leader of the latter faction. The Chapleaultes say that fighting against halfveeds is intensely unpopular in Quebec, and that to do so means political suicide. They boldly insinuate that the effect of Col. Caron's selecting the regiments commanded by Cols. Ouimet and Amyot for active service will be to kill them politically and to remove from his path two prominent chapleauites. Altogether it looks as if the breach between Mr. Chapleau and the Castor were widening.

CLARKE'S CROSSING, N.W.T., April 19.—

Dear Mother; I write in camp on Sunday atternoon. All well. We have not smelt powder yet. We all attended field service this forenoon. The general and all his staff was there; the colonel read service and the band of the 90th furnished the music. We were then warned against disobeying orders by the colonels of the regiments. The general complimented us on the manner in which we stood the hardships we have met with, though what they were I do not know. It is all good fun so far. We outnumbered every other battalion. They were four days ahead of us at the start and at the finish only half a day. The Q. O. R. are having a regular picnic, doing it all by rail and boat.

Provision for Our Volunteers.

We are pleased to notice that a suggestion made in these columns regarding the using of barbed wire in the fortifications in the Northwest has been acted on. Some of the forts already have the fences completed. We now respectfully offer another viz.: that to every volunteer on active service in the Northwest the government give a grant of at least 3200 acres of land free of all duties; to each of those wounded it give as a bonus a lump sum of money ranging from $200 to $2000 and that to each family losing a supporter, i. e. father, son or brother it gives at least $300.

This will forever settle the business and at the same time be doing justice to the brave boys at the front. There are many whose health will be permanently shattered by cold and exposure. These should also be recompensed. One hundred thousand dollars would cover almost the entire expenditure in this connection, and there is not a taxpayer in Canada who would object.

Major Walsh's Ideas.

At Port Arthur Major Walsh was interviewed by a Sentinel reporter and expressed himself recity freely. After stating that Major Crozier must have lost his head at the Duck lake fight be said: "Col. Irvite, should have gone back when he met Crozier and camped on the fields that night. Next morring be should have attacked the enemy, if there was any in force, or arrest the leaders of the party he met the previous day. There were 250 men counting Croziers police and settlers all well armed and determined. With that force and the assistance in different localities of the loyal settlers he could have managed the whole affair. Instead of retreating to Prince Albert, which was perfectly safe, he should have dispersed any gathering in the neighborhood of Duck Lake and pushed on for Battleford, where he was needed. The settlers would have been all right life had shown he was masic of the position. The Indians and other turbulent characters were actually encouraged by the colonel's failure to even hold his own. His over-cautiousness was carried to even greater extent than Gen. Middleton's, and at a time when the whole Indian population were watching to see if he was carried to even greater extent than Gen. When they found him retreating, pushing backward instead of advancing, it was almost impossible to prevent some Indians from committing outrages. The half-breeds and Indians to the south of the Saskatchewan are generally well armed with Winchesters and the latest improved weapons. The Garrison Artillery paraded to night and the enthusiasm was unbounded. Hundreds thronged the men so that they could hardly move at the drill shed door. There seems to be an idea that British Columbia and the coast defences against the Russians is the destination of the regiment. This, however, is not credited by the well informed. Lient. Col. Oswald addressed the men stating that they had been the first called out from the sith military district, that the telegram calling them out for active service had been despatched previous to his arrival in Ottawa, and that, therefore, it was through no influence on his part that they sad the honor of the first called out from the 5th military district, that the telegram calling them out for active service had been despatched previous to his arrival in Ottawa, and that, therefore, it was through no influence on his part that they had the honor of the first call. He trusted that before leaving and when there they would obey orders and do their duty. He might say that when he found out the regiment was ordered for service, that he looked to the comforts of the men, the result being that the necessary stores and equipment would be a cold. In an interview with a Witness reporter today. Mr. Wallis, mechanical superintendent, remarked, as an indication of the falling off in the cost of machinery, that they can purchase locomotives for $6000 to-day which cost $9000 in 1883 and $12.000 in 1882. He also insisted that he had show the 10 per cent. reduction to be only temporary, and that when the old rates were warranted by improved rates the men would get them. He says that the Grand Trunk could destroy 450 freight and twelve passenger cars, with thirty-two engines, and still have the complete capital stock intact. The men meet to-morrow morning again to discuss the situation, and expect then to hear from some delegates who went west yesterday to see the men of the western division.

A large mass meeting of the mechanics employed in the car and locomotive works of the Grand Trunk &t Point St. Charles was held in that vicinity yesterday morning to discuss the proposition of the general manager to reduce the wages of the men ten per cent. In opening the meeting the chairman referred to the reception the deputation appointed had received from the chief of the mechanical department, He said Herbert Wallis replied to their representatives that the men would have to agree to the reduction, but they would be employed full time, which was, more in their interest than being idle half time perhaps. Mr. Wallis also remarked that men could accept lower wages as living now was cheaper than formerly. Messrs. Ramsay, Firth and Penny, mechanics, combatted the argument of the mechanical superintendent as not being correct, and all held that it would be better to remain on short time than to accept a reduction in wages. After a ppeals by the various speakers to the men to be united and determined, Mr. Firth proposed a resolution that the men stop, work at once unless Mr. Wallis to inform him as to the decision arrived at by the meeting. in England is a day of fun, of frolic and of joility. The winsome naiden—her ruddy cheeks glowing with an honest healthful hue wakes from her peaceful slumbers at the rising of the sun only to hasten to the village green, there to be crowned as "Queen of the May" by her loving comrades. But Canada, Toronto especially, has its May Day festivities. Dineen, the hatter, keeps up the old style. He sells hats all day long—latest spring styles. Be sure you see his stock.
