Sparrow Housekeeping,

Have you ever watched a pair of sparrows when first the house-hunting and building mania comes upon them? How stupendously busy they are, espocially the cock, and what a fremendous lot herhas to say! As a matter of fact, his missus does all the real work, and he supplies all the theory, which sho consistently disregards.

Not that Mrs. Sparrow norks im-petuously, as though time permitted of no deliberation. On the contrary, she uses the greatest deliberation in the performance of every action, however trivial. Watch her when she is considering the eligibility of, let us say, a bit of string which she has found in the garden path, as material to be used in the building of a nest over which she is busy. First she will sit upon a gooseberry twig a yard or two away and inspect that moises of string from the courts of the courts. the south-east.

Then she will fin over to the apple then sale was int over to the apple tire close by and study it from the north west. Then she win examine it from other points of the compass. At last one will hop up to it and pull it about—apparently accepting it, but re-lecting it again, still uncertain as to its suitability for some purpose exactly defined in her foolish little mind. At last she will decide to use it, and, selzing it, she will fly up to her nest with the treasure, but, vaciliating once again, she drops it at the very threshold, and sits upon the roof a little while, eying it and chattering, explaining to her lord, perhaps that it would have done well enough if it had been longer or shorter, or thicker or hinner, or heaven knows what Finally she will filt down and carry it away to use, and behold to morrow she has turned it out once more, and it lies upon the garden path a rejected thing. Not for long, however, for either she herself or some other bird has removed it next time one looks for the much considered scrap.

That conceited and self-assertive little person, her lord and master, is far fess deliberate in his actions. He is more certain of himself, being convinced that he knows everything, and that to consider and weigh and delib-erate is a waste of time.

He is anxious to help with the nest-making, and holds forth without ceasing while his lady builds. Occasionally lends a hand. He catches sight of a straw, it may be, or a small piece of sick, and it occurs to him that here is very thing his foolish wife has sought for days and failed to find. What does not occur to him is that he is a garrulous old incompetent, and knows no more about nest-building than he does about the laying of eggs. His wife knows all about him, how-ever, and the straw is turned out of the nest again as soon as his back is turned. He has probably placed it in some impossible position, and—after explaining what a marvelous fellow he is, and what a treasure he has brought up in the way of building material—departed, forgetting all about the mat-ter in a moment or two. Even when he sees that straw lying upon the garden path, so concelted is he that he does not recognize it, because he cannot contemplate the possibility of its rejection by the missus. He thinks he has found another treasure. "There," says he, dumping it down by her side as she sits resting, perhaps laying a little egg, in the semi-completed nest; "there's another splendld straw; how is it you don't come across them? I can find them whenever I like!"-"Longman's Magazine."

Baking Powder Economy

The manufacturers of Royal Baking Powder have always declined to produce a cheap baking powder at the sacrifice of quality.

The Royal is made from the most highly refined and wholesome ingredients, and is the embodiment of all the excellence possible to be attained in the highest class baking. powder.

Royal Baking Powder costs only a fair price, and is cheaper at its price than any similar article.

Samples of mixtures made in imitation of baking powders, but containing alum, are frequently distributed from door to door, or given away in grocery stores. Such mixtures are dangerous to use in food, and in many cities their sale is prohibited by law. Alum is a corrosive poison, and all physicians condemn baking powders containing it.
