The above fifty-seven resemblances may not constitute in themselves proof positive that the present Dénés are the old Tungus tribes, but they clear the way for more definite evidence.

PHYSICAL FEATURES AND HABITS OF THE TUNGUS AND THE DÉNÉS.

Adelung quotes Dr. Redowsky as thus describing the Tungus: "They have flat faces, projecting cheek bones, little, sparkling eyes. The women are almost universally uglier than the men. The Tungus are for the most part, under medium stature and of a feeble bodily frame. They are very lively in conversation, and accompany all their utterances with gesticulations, that sometimes descend to the ludicrous. They are a good-natured, harmless people, quick to be angry, but, on the other hand, that as readily forgive offences. They do not trouble themselves about the future and are not industrious, so long as the necessities of life—fish and skins—can be procured easily and without trouble. The objects of their luxury, tobacco and brandy, they obtain from the Russians. Of brandy, they are inordinately fond; for a single beer-glass full they will often give ten and more minever skins." Santini's description does not always coincide. He says: "Their faces are round, the cheek-bones high, the lips thick, the eyes small and black, the forehead small, the ears large, the teeth white, and the hair black. * * * The Tungus are generally tall, athletic and straight. They run with such velocity that I have often seen them overtake the swiftest animal in the forest. Corpulency and deformity of person are blemishes which are seldom seen among them, because from their youth they are trained to the chase and war." Sauer, so far as he goes, agrees rather with Redowsky than with Santini. "They are rather below the middle size and extremely active; have lively, smiling countenances, with small
