- CLEAR WATER.—Any part of the sea unencumbered with ice.
- Crow's Nest.—A small circular house like a cask, fixed at the mast-head, in which the look-out man sits, either to guide the ship through the ice, or to give notice of whales.
- Dock.—In a floe may be natural or artificial; the former being simply a small "bight," in which a ship is placed to secure her from the danger of external pressure; and the latter, a square space cut out with saws for a similar purpose.

- FIELD.—A sheet of ice, generally of great thickness, and of too great extent to be seen over from a ship's mast-head.
- FLINCHING.—The operation of stripping a sea-animal of its skin and blubber.
- FLOE.—The same as a field, except that its extent can be distinguished from a ship's mast-head. A "bay-floe" is a floc of ice newly formed.
- FLOE-PIECE.—An expression generally applied to small pieces of floes, not more than a furlong square.
- A Hole or Pool of Water.—A small space of "clear water," when the rest of the sea is covered with ice.
- Hummock.—A mass of ice rising to a considerable height above the general level of a floe, and forming a part of it. Hummocks are originally raised by the pressure of floes against each other.
