

giving any opinion on these and similar questions, or on the relative merits of different routes, the consideration of which has been pressed on them; and they now, along with the evidence collected by them, beg to present this lengthened Report, for the unusual extent of which they trust an excuse may be found in the necessity of a minute detail, in order to bring before The House, in a manner at all satisfactory, a distinct view of the defects in the existing system for which a remedy is required.

en
nd,
all
to
on
nt
t a

act,
een

led
e of
ar's
er,
uld

ties
the
the
at a
the
ine-

hort
osed,
akes
per-
ting
real,
tious

and
l, we
ning
ould
board

result
ecau-
quate
efore,
osuls,
ained

l our areful
ment.

con-
to the
linary
e cir-
cation
red to

erence
rought
paddle
lowing
n from giving