CARE OF CHILDREN'S TEETH

Proper Attention Prevents Much Suffering in Later Years.

Dr. Herman M. Biggs, New York State commissioner of Health, devoted one of his most recent radio health talks to the care of children's teeth.

"How often one hears a mother say, 'What is the use of taking care of the first teeth when in a few years my child will have a nice set?'" he said. "This is a very wrong and harmful idea. By following this kind of reasoning many mothers have unknowingly caused their children to have misshapen mouths and to suffer much unnecessary pain from decaying teeth. Within a few minutes and we will tell you why this is so.

"If the first teeth decay and have to be extracted or if cavities occur and chewing becomes painful, the child can not properly chew its food, and consequently the jaws do not develop normally. Chewing exercises and strengthens the muscles of the jaw and increases the blood supply of the teeth and jaws. Unless the teeth obtain a normal supply of blood they do not receive enough lime salts to make them hard. This also affects the second teeth which are forming underneath the first.

"The first permanent tooth to appear is the six-year molar, or chewing tooth, which comes through just back of the temporary molars. It is commonly mistaken for a first tooth and thus unless the child has been taught early to take care of his teeth it is often allowed to decay.

"If the first permanent molar is lost it usually results in irregular second teeth as the next incoming tooth pushes forward and occupies the space left by the removal. Besides causing irregularity of the second teeth, this provides additional crevices for food to lodge in, the decay, and makes it much more difficult to keep the teeth clean. It is an expensive and painful job to have these teeth straightened when the child is older.

"If the jaw fails to develop properly, as a result of these causes, the middle section of the face ceases to grow, the face is misshapen, and troubles of the nose, throat and ear often result later in life. Proper care of the temporary teeth will therefore save much pain and suffering and expense. Moreover, if a child is taught to take proper care of the first teeth there will be less chance of decay of the permanent teeth through neglect and the child will have learned a valuable lesson while young.

BLACK FALSE TEETH.

Dental Laboratories Now Cater to Bete-Nut Chewers.

Every shade and shape of artificial tooth is now matchable and even the man who has blissfully chewed his quid for years and added the stains of tobacco juice to the other signs of age upon his teeth can find artificial teeth bearing convincing tobacco-juice-like stains, all prepared by modern science for his benefit.

Even jet black teeth are now being made by British laboratories for the Oriental trade for those with whom the chewing of betel-nut is a constant habit, and jet black false teeth, representing an out-of-the-way side of British manufacturing enterprise were shown at the recent International Dental Exhibition at the Imperial Institute, South Kensington, East of St. Paul, betel-nut is the local chewing gum, only more so, and it stains the teeth of those who use it an intense black, as dark as ebony. One-tenth of the human family indulge in the practice, according to the correspondent of The London Times, who explains the real place of these black false teeth in the sun. Imagine an ardent betel-nut enthusiast finding himself confronted with the necessity of substituting a brilliant white tooth in a row of polished black ones, or with the alternative of leaving a gap in the hedge, as it were.

The International Dental Exhibition featured, besides the X-ray, a French apparatus, known as the gazotherm, which, it is asserted by its inventors, makes dentistry painless by a process of progressive refrigeration.

A feature of interest was the course of daily lectures on dental caries. The discovery and isolation of the bacillus which causes caries is the work of three scientists connected with the Middle-

Hospital: Professor James Macintosh, Dr. Warwick James and Professor P. Lazarus Barlow. The connection between rickets and mad teeth and the reason why the people of the Western Hemisphere are for the most part harassed by dental caries, is now being made the subject of some elaborate dental research in England, was also discussed.

INSURE FOR $100,000 MARK TWAIN'S NAME

New York, Oct. 6.—A representative of a New York publishing firm has left here for Boston with 1,024 signatures of Mark Twain, insured for $100,000. The signatures—"Samuel L. Clemens, Mark Twain"—were written on sheets to be bound in autographed volumes of his works. They were mislaid for years, and were recently discovered under an old safe. The amount of the insurance is said to make this signature the most highly valued of any author's. The sheets will be taken over by a rare book dealer in New York, who plans to dispose of 1,000 sets for an aggregate of $262,000.

LAWYER DID NOT SIGN WILL

Solitor Liable to Legatee for the Amount of Actual Loss Through Failure to Witness Signature.

Toronto, Oct. 6.—That a lawyer who should have witnessed a will, but did not, is liable to one who would have received a legacy under the will had it been valid for the amount of actual loss sustained, is a decision by Justice Leask in a case arising in connection with the estate of a Midland boat manufacturer named Fitzpatrick, who left an estate set some $10,000 to his widow and two young children.

The lawyer who drew the will initially certain changes which had been made in the will, but he failed to attach his signature at the place where the witness to the will usually signs his name. Justice Leask holds that the will was not executed, and that Fitzpatrick died intestate. He holds that the solicitor is liable to Mrs. Fitzpatrick for the amount of her actual loss occasioned by the solicitor's default.

A reference is directed to the Local Master of Midland to determine the amount of the loss. His lordship suggests that it is an arrangement for the custody and maintenance of the children so that the loss would not amount to much, and his lordship suggests that the widow ought not to be exacting.

BOSTON RATS RUN FREE AS HUNTERS STRIKE

Employers of Rodent Catching Firms From Union, Demand Higher Pay, Shorter Hours.

Boston, Oct. 6.—The rats of the city are on a holiday. The rat catchers are on strike. The fall season, with its frost, ordinarily one of rodent discomfort, became one of almost unimpeded hampering and foraging and consequent content. In department stores, railroad terminals, business buildings and confectionery and other shops served by the only two companies in the city making a business of rat catching with man, dog and ferret aids to extermination instead of poisons, protection was incomplete or lacking.

All the men rat catchers employed by each were on strike for more money, shorter hours and work only with the men assigned as their masters, were of little use. Ferrets, similarly in need of trained hands to direct them, could not be used effectively.

W. G. Gettle, head of one company, explained that his staff men and the men of the other company, about the same in number, formed a union and set about to change their working conditions. "They now work from 6 at night to 4 in the morning, get 62 1/2 cents an hour, instead of 50 cents an hour and on Sunday at pay and one-half. They demand a shorter night, starting at 10 o'clock instead of 6 o'clock," he said.

The rats roamed most at night and on Sunday, he asserted. With business places empty then, the rat catchers had a free field.

EXCESSIVE SPEEDING RUINS GOOD ROADS

Present System of Traffic Control a Failure.

Sherbrooke, Que., Oct. 6.—The Hon. J. L. Perron, Minister of Roads, speaking at the fall meeting of the Association of Boards of Trade at Bury, warned automobile owners that excessive speeding was the ruin of good roads and that unless a stop was made the 1,600 miles of provincial highways in this province, he claimed that the damage caused by excessive speed during the current year was far in excess of that caused by trucks and in excess of that caused by potholes.

Mr. Perron admitted that the present system of traffic control was a failure.

Mr. Nichols stated that while $10,000 had been collected in fines for speeding, he had cost the Government about $80,000 to maintain its traffic control and even at this price it was totally inadequate.

HERO TURNS DOWN A LECTURE OFFER

U. S. World War Veteran Refuses $100 Per Day Engagement.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Sgt. Samuel Woodfill of Tennessee, named by General Pershing as the greatest individual hero of the world war, has turned down an offer of $100 a day for a two weeks' lecture course, although the sergeant is not burdened with many other offers. He gave two reasons for declining the offer. One is his positive refusal to commercialize his exploits and the other is that he has more than any other loyal American would have done under similar circumstances. He declines to prefer to spend his furlough helping the Cook County American Legion Posts in their drive for $350,000 to establish a memorial headquarters and relief fund for needy service men.

AUTO SUBMERGED; FUGHT BANDITS

Windsor Man Shot in Arm and Robbed of Money and Watch.

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 6.—Ernest Beason, who lives in Riverside Drive above Walkerville, fought a losing battle with two bandits while his motor car was submerged in Detroit River. The robbers shot Beason in the arm and escaped with several hundred dollars in cash and a gold watch.

Beason was on his way home when a masked man thrust a revolver in his face as he made the turn of Pilette Road, Ford. The burg leaped on the running board of Beason's car and grappled with him. The car turned off the road into the river in about four feet of water.

An accomplice, who also attacked Beason, ran from behind a hedge, climbed into the car and choked him. A description of the man was given to Chief of Police Mainville, of Ford. Beason's wound is not serious.

WESTERN ORPHANAGES.

D. C. Clark, the president, was welcomed home once more at the meeting of the directors of the New Brunswick Protestant Orphanage yesterday afternoon. Mr. Clark was in the chair and gave an interesting account of orphanages in Vancouver and other western cities which he had seen in his recent trip to the west and to Alaska. Chiefly routine business was dealt with. There are now 139 children in the three institutions and the reports showed that the affairs of the institutions were being well managed and that the children were well cared for.
