in the correspondence which led up to the reference of the question to those expert commissioners, Lord Salisbury's contention has been that the seal pirates inflicted little or no damage on the herds, as compared with the losses sustained through the annual killing of seals on the Pribilof islands by the North American Seal Company. It is true that the Canadian and British experts were inclined to believe that the present condition of the herds was in a large measure chargeable to the operations of the seal company in 1889; and prior years, when they were permitted to kill as many as 100,000 seals annually on the islands. As the commissions will report independently, the nature of the remedy to be recommended cannot be known yet. The American commissioners would favor a total suspension of pelagic sealing, is possible, and, while it is hardly probable that the British would be willing to concede this much, it is believed they may be disposed to recommend further restrictions upon pelagic sealing either by extending the boundaries of the closed season, lengthening the closed season, or both.

The Russian and Japanese governments, having seals of their own to protect, are interesting themselves on our side of the case. The commissions paid a visit to the Russian Commander islands as well as the Japanese islands, in pursuit of their inquiry. A Russian representative is already in the United States to follow up the matter, and with the active co-operation of these governments in our behalf, it is hoped the British will be disposed to consent to further restrictive measures, particularly as the time is now ripe, owing to the almost total failure of the pelagic sealers to make paying catches the past summer.
