In speak-

In dealing with the ford future of the country he was by no means in sympathy with those who are endeavoring to create a sentiment in favor of independence, much less annexation to the United States. He referred to the fact that we are sometimes told that the Dominion is not a country because its products are limited by the non-possession of soil within the tropics, while the United States is a country because it has within itself the products of both temperate and tropical climates. After proving by refernes to some of the greatest countries of the world that there was little weight in that argument he showed that in the production of roots, cereals and fruits which were the most useful to man, Canada has the sterling, hardy qualities of the northmen, who had always dominated, in modern as well as ancient times, over the more pleasure-loving and effeminate races, who seemed to be physically enervated by upon this session of Council.
