

THE GAZETTE

DALHOUSIE UNIVERSITY

SEX & CENSORSHIP

BY SUZETTE CHAN

EDMONTON (CUP) — GEORGE Orwell was two years off. In 1984, equality meant conformity, so the state formed the Anti-Sex League to enforce state-approved sexual activity (or non-activity). In 1986, sexuality means deviancy, so the state is using legislation to stamp out immorality. The difference is that you can close Orwell's book, go to bed and forget about it, but you can't wish away the tide of conservatism and go to bed without thinking of the ramifications of what you may do there...

Continued on page 8

Cover design & illustration: Rick Janson

Volume 119 Number 3
September 18, 1986