

CONTENTS.

INTRODUCTION.

1. Self-defence not the object of the letter. — 2. Motives which impelled to an examination of Catholic truth. — 3. The struggle with myself in coming to the examination. — 4. The feelings in which it was undertaken. — 5. What is the essential prerequisite to an examination of the question between Catholics and Protestants . . . . . 11

CHAPTER I.

CERTAINTY IN THE FAITH TO BE SOUGHT AND EXPECTED.

1. This argued from the fact of man's wants and of God's revelation, God's promise and God's provision. — 2. Argued from the confidence that, under the circumstances, is reasonably expected from man towards God. — 3. Ending with a friendly caution . . . . . 22

CHAPTER II.

GOD'S REVELATION TO BE RECEIVED AND SUBMITTED TO WITHOUT RESERVE.

1. The case stated. — 2. God's revelation to be received in all its parts, from the simple fact of its having been made by God. — 3. From the teaching of God Himself in various examples from His written Word . . . 33

CHAPTER III.

IN WHAT WAY GOD HAS NOT SECURED TO US THE GUIDANCE OF THE HOLY GHOST IN LEARNING HIS WILL.

1. All Christians concur in the belief, that God's Spirit must guide into all truth. — 2. In what way has God secured to us the guidance of His Holy Spirit? — 3. It must be a way of universal applicability. — 4. It must be a way suited especially to the condition of the poor. — 5. It must be a way calculated to promote "unity in the Faith." — 6. In all these respects the way of Protestants fails . . . . . 37