MRS. A. WALLACE With startling suddenness the angel of death entered the home of Mr. Abraham Wallace of the ninth concession of Hurlingham township on Sunday, Feb. 8th, 1920 and claimed for its victim the beloved wife and mother. Mrs. Wallace had been ailing for several months but had always been able to be around the house and during the summer and early fall was much better. But a little later she grew worse and recommenced medical treatment. The first cause of her illness had been the "after effects" of the "flu" but later dropsy developed. On the Tuesday previous to her death she had visited the doctor in Tweed for medical service but the medicine did not seem to help her as formerly. On Sunday she seemed better, than she had for some time and had eaten (for her) quite a hearty dinner. After dinner she rested awhile and read the paper. Soon after she sat down by the window and seemed apparently to be watching some person on the road but Mr. Wallace noticed her head falling and went to her to raise her head. But the only breath

Some Volunteer Nurses Wanted For "Flu" Cases - Three or Four Workers Needed Mr. P. F. Brockel, who is in charge of the "flu" relief work in Belleville, has issued a call for three or four volunteer nurses. A few calls for assistance have come in. Also required are old cotton and cloths for nursing pneumonia patients and making poultices and pneumonia jackets. While the "flu" crest may have been reached, there is still much sickness and quite a number are very ill.

Mr. T. E. Wilson, former superintendent of the Hastings Co. House of Refuge, who left here some months ago to reside in southern California, has had the honor to be appointed superintendent of parks for the city of Colton, where he has made his home. The city is carrying out an ambitious park scheme, not only with the accustomed trees, shrubbery, grass plots and flower beds, but with a wading pool for children and baths and swimming pools for adults, baseball diamond, tennis courts and croquet grounds. A replica of this park in miniature, is the feature of an exhibit of the Colton Chamber of Commerce at the great Orange Exhibition now in progress at San Bernardino. Mr. Wilson is in charge of the exhibit, passing out circulars and giving information to visitors. The San Bernardino Daily Sun speaks in a most complimentary way of the exhibit, in the course of a half column description.

Life is Give and Take Proposition

Continued from page 3. He must not do such things as would disturb the peace and quiet of his neighborhood. He must remember that he owes a duty to his community. Not Question of Right. A man may say that he has the right to spend his money where he pleases; that no one can stop him if he wants to buy his groceries, his clothes and his furniture in some city miles away from where he earns the money to pay for them. He is right. There is no law to prevent him from doing so, unless it is the law of self-preservation. The man who has the right to send his money away to some distant city instead of spending it at home, also has the right to send his children to that city to be educated in the schools, which his money helps to support. He doesn't exercise that right. He sends his children to the local schools, the maintenance of which is made possible by the men who spend their money at home. Life in any community today is a give-and-take proposition. A man can not take everything and give nothing and get away with it for any great length of time. He can not take his living from a community and give nothing back to help the other fellow make a living. If he cuts off the other fellow's living, he is bound eventually to cut off his own, for unless the other fellow has money to buy his labor or his goods he cannot make a living himself. You may say that what you buy doesn't amount to much and the money that you send away to the mail order houses in other cities can not have any great effect upon the general business conditions in your town. Maybe it doesn't amount to much and maybe it won't have any great effect upon the community's prosperity in itself, but what will be the result if every person in the community, or half of them, or a tenth of them, take the same view of the matter. Your business, in itself, may not amount to much, but taken together with the business of a hundred others in the community, it amounts to a great deal. It amounts to the difference between a prosperous community and a "dead" one. It amounts to the difference, in the end, between good times and bad times, for yourself and your own family. If you lived on a desert island, it would make no difference where you sent your money, because it would make no difference whether you had any money at all or not. But you are not living upon a desert island. You are living in a modern community. To do everything possible to build up that community is not only a duty which you owe to the community, but—more important still—it is a duty which you owe to yourself. Taxes Will Increase You have children to educate. You want your community to have good schools so that your children may have the same advantages that the children in the big city have. If you live on a farm, you need good roads over which to haul your products to market. You may say that you pay your share of the taxes out of which the school-houses are built and the roads constructed. Maybe you do pay your share, in proportion to the value of your world's goods, but where is the other fellow to get the money to pay his share of the taxes if, after you pay your taxes, you send the remainder of your money to some other community to help build their schools and construct their roads. The merchants of any community pay a very considerable part of the taxes collected in that community. Go to the tax books and you will find this to be the case. When the business of the merchant falls off and he carries smaller stocks and has less money in the bank, he pays a smaller taxes, and as the amount he pays in taxes decreases, the amount you pay must increase if the schools are to be maintained and the roads kept up. It may be a man's own business if he wants to send his money to help build up the big cities where the mail order houses flourish, but it's poor business for himself as well as for everybody else in the community in which he lives. A Pill That Is Prized.—There have been many pills put upon the market and pressed upon public attention, but none has endured so long or met with so much favor as Parmentier's Vegetable Pills. Widespread use of them has attested their great value, and they need no further advertisement than this. Having firmly established themselves in public esteem, they now rank without a peer in the list of standard vegetable preparations.
