Mr. Macpherson tells More About His Hogs and Cattle

And how he Makes 'I hem Yield a Revense of $7000 a Year off

Mr. John Northwood has received a second letter from D. M. Macpherson, of Lancaster, re the successful breeding of hogs. In this communication Mr. Macpherson says:

Mr. Macpherson says:

My statements to you were from practical experience and extended observation in relation to profitable and large pork production. Large, numerous litters, well saved, with rapid growth and early maturity is what the pork raiser wants and he must look round and select his breeding stock where he will obtain these to the highest degree. My experience with Berkshire breeds is, that while they are undoubtedly early fat-makers they are not good growers, and at they are undoubtedly early fat-makers they are not good growers, and at the same time unsuccessful in raising large litters for an average of a number of sows. I aim to get an average of eight to nine pigs per sow from a herd of thirty sows. I could in the past get such from the large Berkshire, but with a cross of the best type of Berk boar and York or Chester White sows I have got an average of eight matured pigs. I have not practiced boiling feed but soak it instead. I use largely bran and shorts, mixed, also grain provender.

I use largely bran and shorts, mixed, also grain provender.

In reply to your query re-feeding 90 cows and 250 pigs on my farm, would say that the pigs are continuously pastures on about six to eight acres of pasture, which is supplemented with slops and meal. The cows are all pastured night and day on about 45 acres of arable prepared pasture, and in addition about 30 acres of stump new land broken pasture. The cows also get some meal, in small The cows also get some meal, in small amounts, when the pasture is short amounts, when the pasture is short in dry times, and during August and September they get occasionally some green corn or green feed. Should the pasture be insufficient to give a full flow of milk. I aim to feed in such a way, by this method so as to get 5,000 lbs of milk per cow in 200 days of the summer from May to November.

I have no plan of a pig pen to give way. Am anyious to come across one you. Am anxious to come across one hat is right, but I have not done that is right, but I have not done so yet. Have been studying out one of my own design, but it is not completed yet. My ideal qualifications of a pig pen are: warmth, dryness, convenience, yentilation, healthfulness and cheapness of construction, etc.

Your idea of the introduction of beet reconstruction, is a good one but its Your idea of the introduction of sect root sugar is a good one, but its growth and development should be compatible with the wants of the country and the skill to profitably raise and produce the sugar beet pro-fitably. There appears to me to be no lack of skill available to produce the beet economically and well, but it does seem to me that the farmer has to be educated up to a point where they can produce sugar beets at a profit at which the sugar manufacturer can easy and leave him a fair profit. can pay and leave him a fair profit. This fact, I teel assured, is the critical part of this question. For instance the average cost of milk production in Ontario is about 60 cents pay 100 reports. per 100 pounds, while I can produce in large quantities for 25 cents to 30 cents-It is a question of large production at small cost in beets sugar) as it is with milk, on pork or beef, or any other saleable product.

Showing how Little Things may at Times Decide a Mans Fortune.

ine truth of the saying that little things may oftentimes play an important part to men's affairs when the men least expect it was illustrated one day recently.

"See that young man over there," remarked an insurance friend of his, pointing to one of his clerks working away industriously at a desk in another room. "Well, he got his place in my office through the striking of a match, although he doesn't know it.

"I was standing at the entrance of this building about a month ago waiting for a friend to come down the elevator, when that young man approached me with a letter of recommendation and an application for employment. I had made it known a few days before that I needed another clerk, and he had heard of it. However, I had almost made up my mind to take on a young man who had been to see me the day before and was about to tell the last applicant so, when he pulled a match from one of his pockets to light, a cigar he had been smoking, but which had gone out. "'Sorry, sir,' he said, balancing himself on one foot, while he lifted the other so as to admit of his striking the match on the heel of his shoe. 'Sorry, for I would like very much to work for you, and I think I would have made you a good clerk.' "The match striking incident made me think so too. Right at the young man's elbow was a great Italian marble column upon which were the marks showing where many matches had been struck by vandals too utterly indifferent to the rights of others to refrain from indelibly stamping their vandalism upon property to restore which would have cost hundreds of dollars. It would have been the most natural thing in the world for many a man to have scratched that match on the marble column, and the fact that this young manichose to use the heel of his shoe instead showed that he was thoughtful and conscientious, two very excellent traits. I was so impressed that I told him to come and see me and the result of the visit was his securing the position. And his month in my office has shown that I made no mistake in sizing him up."-Philadelphia Inquirer.

An Admirable Account of Many Babylonian Discoveries.

Substantial Evidences of Strange Mythical Beliefs

The German expedition, under Dr. Koldeway, has made two important discoveries in the Kasr Mound of Babylon. The first is a stela of dol-orite, found in the east corner of the ruins. On one side is the image of a Hittite god. He is bearded, and wears a Phygian cap, the hair hangs in a long braid, the outer garments is decorated and extends to the knees, and the shoes are curved and pointed. He carries a trident and hammer and wears a sword. mportant individual is considered to be none other than the great Hittite god, Tishut, the god of thunder.

The other discovery bears, over worshipping man, the inscription "Image of Shamash-Shaknu, the man from the lands Shuchu, and Maru." Near the worshipper are the words. "A measure of meal, one measure of vine I have appointed as a settled matter by this stone fablet; he who guards the palace shall enjoy these. These are evidently promised as reward to the deities Hadad and Sshtar for the protection.

A certain Sunday School teacher in town who has a class of boys of assorted sizes established the custom in her class of repeating each Sunday scripture passage in unison until it was firmly implanted in the vagrant minds.
