GOOD EXCURSION

The Park street Methodist Sunday school excursion to Belle Isle yesterday, was one of the best attended and managed of the season. Notwithstanding the dull morning, the people flocked down to the boat and before leaving Rankin dock, had a large crowd on board. At the same time down the river about another hundred altogether, got on, taxing the boat to its utmost capacity. The children and all enjoyed a pleasant day on the island and in Detroit. A couple of young ladies who went to Detroit were left. It was most successful from a financial point, fully $75 being cleared. The stands were very profitable, the ladies taking in over $30, and the gentlemen selling everything they had in the stand and taking in over fifty dollars. The chorus singing on the boat was again under the direction of J. W. White, and was most enjoyable.

GREAT TEA DRINKERS.

The Maritime Province people use about six pounds of tea per head, or say about thirty pounds per year to an average family. They are also said to be good judges of tea, and this must be a strong recommendation for Red Rose, which is the principal Tea used.

MORE ABOUT FISH

"Talk about your fish stories," said Mr. Merrill this morning, "you don't have to have to have a wild imagination to tell a good one these days. You may not believe it, but it is an actual fact that they are spearing fish in a cornfield in Harwich."

There is a big ditch in John Walrath's farm, up the river, which runs through a large, 70 acre cornfield. During the heavy rains the creek rose until the water was three feet deep over the field. The carp came up that creek in shoals and were, as a result of the high water, scattered all over the field. The water has gone down a little now and the farmers are out in the cornfield spearing carp by the dozens.

"This is the first time in the history of this country that farmers have been spearing fish in corn fields."

A BAD BREAK

Peddler of Cheap Glasses Holds up E. J. MacIntyre and was Arrested.

E. J. MacIntyre, the optician, thinks that he knows a thing or two about eye glasses, and he does. He was, therefore, somewhat surprised this morning when a German Jew came up to his door and offered to sell him a pair of cheap eye glasses. The man gave his name as W. L. Hooper, and Mr. MacIntyre says that the fellow tried to sell him a pair of spectacles for $3 that at 15 cents retail price would have afforded a good comfortable profit. Mr. MacIntyre was angry that a man should go around victimizing his customers, but the well known jeweler was more, he was adroit. He led the eye glass vendor on to tell him many things and Mr. MacIntyre was surprised to learn that the grip merchant had sold glasses to Dr. Carson, R. Victor Carter, four girls at the Merrill Hotel, and a stationer. He gave his name as W. L. Hooper and was some more astonished when the peddler told him he was living with Dr. Hall. Mr. MacIntyre felt that a man with such a remarkable story should be taken care of by the police, so he notified them and P. C. Darr gathered the man in on the charge of peddling without a license. The peddler gave his name as W. L. Hooper and Toronto as his home.

He told a hard luck story to the chief about a sick wife, a blind child, and he even acknowledged being sick himself. His throat bothered him and his corns hurt his feet. He couldn't eat and he hadn't any money. He was even ashamed to be arrested. He had never been in court even as a witness.

"Did you find any places I sold any spectacles," he asked E. J. MacIntyre when that gentleman arrested him, and the stationer said "Never mind, Mr. MacIntyre," continued the spectacle seller, when the Maple City merchant designed not to pay any attention to the question, "this will be in the papers."

"I want it to be in them," was the curt rejoinder of the local expert physician.

Mayor Sulman adjudicated on the case in the absence of Judge Houston from the city. He allowed the man to go on the understanding that he should dust. Later in the morning Walter Seane reported that a man answering Hooper's description, had represented himself as Dr. Garret Holmes, had sold a number of spectacles, in Ridgeway. Hooper yesterday afternoon tried to see to Health Inspector Anson Mounter. He told Mr. Mounter that he had sold spectacles to Dr. Hall. A. I. McCall says that these peddlars go through the country making such false representations and damaging the trade of respectable citizens. Such peddlars have pretended to represent Mr. McCall's and have sold glasses in the country on these false pretensions.
