How He Advised.

A gentleman, living in a small city in the West, had inherited consumption from his father, and the doctor told him he must die. He stopped taking their weakening physic and tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discavery. In three months he was strong and well. The gentleman's neighbors knew how sickly he formerly was, and asked him to state in public how he had been cured. He advertised to lecture on a certain evening, in the public hall, and there was a large audience present. This was his lecture: A picture of himself, before, and one after, he tried the remedy, and five empty bottles of Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. He said nothing, but convinced his audience just the same.

It outrivals all—Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

Beecher's Last Writing.

Beecher's Last Writing.

The manuscript of the following is reproduced in the December Certury. It is the final paragraph of a fragment by Mr. Beecher giving an account of his visit to England during the war. This is believed to have been the last piece of writing by Mr. Beecher: "A more pathetic example of the heroism of the poor was never exhibited than in the case of the Lancashire weavers. They saw their industries wasting, the bread grew scarce, even their poverty grew poorer, nor was there any sign upon the horizon that this cloud would soon pass away, and yet they held fast their integrity; and, believing that the cause of the North was the cause of the day laborer the world over, they patiently bore famine and distress with fortitude till the day dawned. No other men among all English-speaking people gave a testmony of the love of liberty so heroic and so pathetic as the weavers of Lancashire."

"A Small Thing."

A Lyric.

(Published by request.) What has the gospel done for you, and what have you done for the gospel? These are important questions.

Many a prosperous man, but for the gospel would have been a wrecked, debauched, degraded wreck; many another man would have been selfish unsocial, surly, and uncomfortable The gospel has made the world brighter, life sweeter, and man better where ever it has gone. This gospel is sent into all the world, and, in obedience to the man date of Jesus Christ, and under his direction, his servants spend their time and strength, forsake their fami lies, cut themselves off from various HOUSE sources of support and emolument, and go forth to the Gentiles to carry the glad tidings to lost sinners, and thus win them to the Saviour.

The man who does this may have heavy responsibilities; a living to earn, a family to support, and people around him in need of relief. He must also love his neighbor, and set an example of Christian benevolence, or else he cannot preach it to others. But if he s to do all these things how is he to heads, and bread to eat in his absence, and he must live honestly and not dishonor the gospel. But none of these U. knew of our coming, and a meet-their hands in inocency, so will the honor the gospel. But none of these things are provided for by the mere offer to pay a man's "travelling expenses," to go perhaps hundreds of miles and spend time and strength allowing the notice was so short, the miles and spend time and strength allowing the notice was so short, the miles and spend time and strength allowed to the miles and spend time allowed time allowed to the miles and spend time allowed to the miles and time allowed to the miles and time allowed to the miles and time allowed
