acumen. In his house the 'Pleasures of Hope' was first read in MS.; and Mr. Mercer used to remark, that it was difficult to say whether the eritic or poet was most fastidious about correc-tions and alterations. So carefal was Campbell of giving the highest possible finish to his pieces, that one of his songs was a twelvemonth under his hands before he submitted it to any of his friends. Campbell, like his great predecessor, was fond of solitade— "The Muse nas Poet ever find her, Til by hinned' he learn'd to wander." He was frequently observed saustering heedleas-ly atone in some of the walks in the seighbour-hood of Edinburgh, and almost always humning a tune; no doubt conning over those splendid lyrical odes, which shall live as long as "The meter flag of England The Sleeping Forest - Child. The following singular and romantic details relative to this gentleman have reached us from authentic sources:— "Captain Davideon, who was formerly an of-fier in the army, successeded his father in the valuable entailed estates of Muirhouse and Hat-ton, in the County of Edinburgh, some years ago. He was previously married, and the father of seven children. After his succession he mort. gaged his life-interest in the entailed estates so deeply, that he had almost no surplus, and his life was insured with various insurance compa. 5d ld PORE-M Thy sheek is glowing in the grass With deep exatic bloom.
