Morris Pessler, forty-five, of No. 16 Sunolk Street, walked out yesterday with his wife and son. He was saved by an operation remarkable for skill, delicacy and daring.

Tessler had suffered for many years with an ear trouble that finally rought about a congestion of one side f the brain. This so seriously interered with the entire circulation of he blood of his body that death was nminent. The congested condition obbed him of his senses and had berun to spread downward toward the
