(By Carl Waldemar). Berlin, July 16.-Prominence is given n the current number of The Grenzoten, a well-known review of politics literature and art, edited by Herr George Cleinow, to an unsigned article n which an alliance between Germany and Sweden is advocated. The writer refers to the fact that the most assiduhave always been directed toward the open sea, and he states that nothing low remains for Russia but an advance towards the northwest, "for stated that the question of the flag which she is apparently preparing." He remarks that in January, 1912, Sven Hedin published the pamphlet enti tled "A Note of Warning," and that in April last Prof. Pontus Fahlbeck, of Lund University, published another entitled "The Swedish and the Northern

STORIES OF THE STREETS

(By Harry F. Burmester)

They've organized a new club here and believe me, Bo, it's some regular institution. Not one of those pomme de terre au gratin things where light-headed youths with slicked hair gamble gaily with father's bankroll and get themselves in Dutch at home by their bridge osses but a sane society with a purpose.

It is called the Sappatanus club. Its home is an air-castle and ts members are dreamers. It is an athletic club in the sense that he imaginations of the members are exercised at each meeting and the truth is occasionally stretched. No one is supposed to take a fellow member seriously on penalty of suspension. It is different from he old time Ananias club in that it is modern and Calgarian. Any egular fellow is eligible to membership. Raconteurs preferred. The boys meet nightly.

The initial meeting last night started in very auspiciously-and ended that way. Walter Albaugh, the automobile man; Dr. Thomas Quirk, Charles Nevin, former mayor of Butte; "Johnny" Wegener, E. P. Howard and a number of other charter member had gathered o elect a standman. A "standman" occupies the same position figuratively speaking) in the Sappantaus club as the chairman does n an ordinary society. Only all "Saps" stand during the club meetng so a chairman would be inappropriate.

Well anyhow, the lads were just getting together and there hadn't been a harsh word spoken when some horned-individual named Hennessy, Texased his way into the sacred circle and announced hat he was going to tell a funny story. Now take this one straight from Sweeny. . Anytime he has to tell youthat it's going to be a funny story you can bet the family plate against a cubic yard of Calgary paving that it will be about as funny as a crutch. A funny story needs no affidavit man. But I'm digressing.

He started in bravely and everyone looked bored. Dr. Quirk, thoughtful soul, slipped away and instructed a page to call the members of the party one by one and inform each one separately that he was wanted at the phone or in the grill. The ruse worked beautifully and the volunteer near-raconteur was left all alone ere he was half way through his tale. Then the boy got togethernus Hennessy-and proceeded with the regular order of business.

Albaugh started with this one: I know the stingiest man in the world"-It's agin the rules to talk about a fellow member", interrupted
