A most determined succide occurred in a street of Cromae street. Belfast. A woman manued Margaret Comnor, speed fifty-three years while alone in the noves, out her throat.

A syndicate is feneing off the approaches to the Giant's Causeway, it is contemplated to erect two large gates with the object of preventing parties landing from beats. The further development in connection with this new more will be watched with interest by the public generally. The Orange saturnalia of July was ushered in in Belfast on July lat by a number of bands, which paraded some of the principal streets playing party tunes, and attended by more or less boisterously aggressive crowds. No disturbances took place, but the police were exceptionally vigilant. In a namber of provincial towns and villages similar parades were held by the "brethren" on the list of July. In Bessbrook in the early morning groups of "loyalists paraded the streets indulging in party expressions. On their way through the town they samashed the windows in the houses of several Catholic inhabitants. Reports state that the Catholic church and preceptivery were the chief objects of attack. Here they halted, drummed and shouted, and ended by discharging a volley of stones in the direction of the windows.

At Belfast on June 29th J. J. Mullen, the champion long-distance runner of Ireland, fairly put the scal

At Belfast on June 20th J. J. Mullen, the champion long distance runner of Jreland, fairly put the seal upon his already great reputation by beating George Orossland for the second out of three times. There is no need to descant upon Mullen's previous performances, for they are well known to those who take any interest in athletics, and it is equally unnecessary to refer to Crossland's brilliant record, suffice it to say that Mullen is perhaps the best long-distance runner Iroland has ever possessed, while Crossland is generally considered the best man in England at the present time. Of this, indeed, there is little doubt, for he has recently beaten his only serious rival, Bacon, three times in succession, so that Mullen having now beaten Orossland twice out of three times, may very fairly claim to be the best man in the kingdom at the present time.

At the meeting of the Belfast Corporation on July st, Alderman Lawther moved the adoption of the minutes of the Council in committee approving of the Belfast Corporation Bill. Councillor Johnston said they could not shut eyes to the fact that two-thirds of the public of Belfast did not approve of the bill as it now stood, and to the way in which the wards had been mapped out. The citizens were not satisfied with the action of that committee in jerrymandering the wards as they have done. Councillor Bell said he had no idea of giving his sanction to the action of the committee that went to London. Councillor Bell said he had no idea of giving his sanction to the action of the committee. He was prepared to vindicate himself before the Public of Belfast for anything he had done in that matter. He believed the committee had done what was right and fair in meeting their Roman Catholic brethren, and if they brought about a good feeling between all parties that Corporation had done the best work they had ever accomplished. Councillor Young endorsed the remarks of Councillor McCormick. What had been done was done in the interests of the two with the town, in the interests of the ratepayers, and in the interests of that Council, that all parties of the public should be represented. Council or Barklie said the committee in London had not usurped the functions of that Council of Belfast, that was responsible. Council or Gentle of the Council of Belfast, that was responsible. On July 1st a meeeing of representative farmer of North Derry and Antrim was held in the large held of the Temperance Cafe, Coleraine, to take into consideration the now Land Bill and its relation to the present state of the country. Grave fault was found with the Bill.

The annual distribution of prizes to successful students at St. Columb's College, Derry, was held in the Assembly Room of the college on June 27th. There was a large and representative attendance of clergy and lairy. His Lordship the Most Rev. Dr. O'Doherty distributed the prizes amid loud applause.

The Orangemen and the Presbyterian Church authorities in Derry have, it is stated, got into loggerheads, and there may be some instructive developments. Little as yet is known to the public, but is a fact that the use of the first Presbyterian Church or "big meeting house," as it is familiarly termed, has been officially asked for a service on the July anniversary, and the application has been met with a refusal causing deep indignation amongst the brethern. Considerable influence has been set at work to change the decision of the Church Committee, but one or two members held out resolutely, and the use of the building will not be given to the Orangemen. It is singular, too, that the Apprentice Boys have recently disputed with the cathedral authorities as to the right to be consulted on the selection of the saniversary preacher. Thus on the last Apprentice Boy demonstration day the members went to Christ Church for their special service, whilst a service sparsely attended was held at the same time in the cathedral. This is the second occasion in history of the Orange or Apprentice Boy party displays that the first Presbyterian house, the largest in Derry, has been refused to the celebrants.

Reviewing the progress of the fishing industry during the past quarter The Freeman a Journal says that Ireland cannot claim to have had a very prosperous time. There is not much to be said in favour of the industry of Galway Bay, if we may accept the mackerel fishery at Arran and Cleggan. This has now closed for the season, but was most successfulduring the time that operations were carried or the only fish that is pleutiful in the Galway waters is the familiar gurnard, which is certainly in abundance, and has been so for the past six weeks. Amid a scene of great brilliancy the "Thomond" Bazaar was opened on July 1st. All the morning the streets of the city were gay with cyulpages and the bright and fantastic costumes of the stall holders hastening to take up their places. The splendid coaches of Mr. De Ros Rose. Mr. J. O Grady Delmege, and Mr. G. B. Quin conveyed Lord and Lady Emly and a distinguished party in the curious costumes of the Witches' Stall, with the orthodox high caps and brooms. At three o'clock the Mayor of Limerick arrived in state, attended by the Mace and Sword Bearers and most of the members of the Corporation. The High Sheriff, Mr. J. P. Gaffney, was also present.

An important meeting of the share-holders in the proposed co-operative bacon factory was held on July 3 in Castlerea. There was a large and initiantial attendance of shareholders. The Very Rev. Monsigner Hanly was called for the purpose of having the views of the shareholders as to how to dispose of the subscribed capital, which was considered insufficient to start a bacon curing factory. During a long and protracted discussion it was announced that only 5,000 shares at 5s. each were taken, and this was elemented in the shareholder of the factory.

The distribution of prizes awarded to the students at St. Mary's Training College, Brookgreen, Hammersmith, took place in the Lecture Half of the college on June 27th. His Eminence the Cardinal Archbishop presided.

Mr. J. Dillon, Mr., in the course of an eloquent speech, said—I have listened with the deepest interest, and with the attention which his words must slways of course command, to the speech delivered by his Eminence, and I heard from him one romarkable statement which I listened to with peculiar satisfaction, and that was when he said that the Education Bill was dead its fate had not discouraged you. Our logical position, from which we ought not to allow ourselves to be driven, was this:—A child who desires to have religious teaching and who coest to a religious teaching and who coest to a religious teaching and who coest to a religious teaching and who speech of the correlation of the control of frantic opposition by the idea that an attempt was being made to stop the spenditure of the School Boards an attack the progress of education. We ought not therefore to allow our causa to be in any way bound up with provisions which can be so interpreted. On the contrary, our efforts ought to be to level up. All we should do is to say "spend as much as you like, but treat us with equal justice." I believe that an agitation on those lines throughout the country will simplify the issue and ornable the Government next year to bring in a bill of five or six clauses which would get the vuestion—a bill which would settle the question on the only permanent and satisfactory lines on which it can be settled viz, that of equal justice to all the children of the country.
