

IRAN

Iran has a population of more than 60 million people and has recently become a potential market for seafood. Due to the high price of red meat and the low purchasing power of the people, fish has become a relatively affordable source of protein. The total domestic production during 1992/1993 was 327 tons. The forecasted amount of imports for 1994/1995 are 10,000 to 15,000 tons. Islamic rules state that only scaled fish may be consumed. Seafood currently being imported by Iran are; salmon (pink), mackerel (jack, blue), pollack (Alaska), cod (red), hoki and black ordory.
