

(b) consider and make recommendations in respect of the advisability of Canadian adherence to any new international arrangement in respect of intellectual property as such arrangements affect trade.

(c) co-ordinate the formulation of policy necessary for Canada to carry out any obligations incurred in the negotiations.

The above committee should be represented by senior officials of the departments involved and in particular External Affairs; Consumer and Corporate Affairs with representation from Communications in respect of Copyright.

It is also recommended that the private sector be given the opportunity to participate in the activities of this Committee, particularly organizations such as the International Business Council of Canada, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the Patent and Trade Mark Institute of Canada.
