

CHAPTER III.

METHOD.

PAGE	PAGE
Method Based on Rational Principles,	35
The Flexibility of Method,	35
The Two Aspects of Method,	36
The Inductive Method,	37
The Deductive Method,	38
The Analytic and Synthetic Methods,	38
Relation of the Analytic and Synthetic Methods to the Deductive and Inductive Methods,	39
The First Step Analytic: from the Individual Whole to its Parts,	40
The Second Step Inductive: from the Particular to the General,	40
Adaptation of Methods to Ends,	42
The Deductive Method not suited to Young Children,	42
Memorizing Unintelligible Words,	43
Abstract Knowledge may be given to Advanced Pupils,	44
The Apprehension of Knowledge Involves Mental Activity,	45
Active and Passive Attitudes,	46
Knowledge Gained in Different Ways,	47
Method may be Right in one Aspect and Wrong in the other,	49
Explanation,	49

CHAPTER IV.

THE ART OF QUESTIONING.

A Lesson includes Examination, Teaching, and Telling,	51	and Sustained by Teaching Questions,	57
Questions Classified on the Basis of Purpose,	51	Teaching not Telling, or Hearing Recitation,	59
Examining Questions,	52	Skill in Questioning demands Study and Practice,	60
Examination should proceed in Logical Order,	54	Teaching by Questions Illustrated,	61
Examining Questions Classified on the basis of ground covered,	55	Methods of Calling on Pupils,	62
Topical Questions,	56	Every Recitation a Language Lesson,	64
Show how to deal with Topical Questions,	56	The Teachers should not Repeat the Answers,	65
The Pupil needs to be Guided

CHAPTER V.

ATTENTION.

The Nature of Attention,	67	Characteristics of a Child's Attention,	70
Importance of Attention,	68	Means for securing Attention,	71
Qualities of Attention,	68	Obstacles to Attention,	73
Attention controlled in Two Ways,	69

The C
Subti
The T
Les
Show
Positi
Positi
Tea

Aims,
The A
Kno
Impor
Oral R
Distin

Differ
The A
Phone
The P
The W
The S

Aims a