Mother Knows Best.

"Mother knows best." The words are very familiar but are not always really in the mind of every child. If the words are spoken in a harsh, high-handed authority, one can hardly blame a spirited child for doubting the statement. But the remark quietly made with an unmistakable air of finality about it should leave only a slight doubt in the child's mind—even if it is tinged with natural disappointment.

Of course, mother knows best about numerous things in connection with the child. She understands his best, and his welfare is dearer to her than to any other. With the father, she is the guide and counselor, and she must be also the judge. The mother who tries honestly to exert her authority and influence over her children so that in their future lives they will wisely assert authority over themselves, has the right idea of child training.

The mother who takes pains to have a child see why a certain decision is made is on the right track. This mother prevents selfishness, deceit and rebellion. And these things have to be guarded against in the bringing up of children.

The "why" always interests a child. Mothers who act on this principle do not set their children against them and their decisions. A child does not have to be very old before he can appreciate justice. And he will decide, if given the chance, that also the decision seems against him, mother loves him too well not to be fair.

Children's griefs and disappointment are very intense and a little care will prevent much heart-burning. You owe it to your child to be just in your decisions and to explain to him the reasons for them.

This does not mean apology or that every action should be explained to a child. There are times when no explanations are called for, but the wise mother knows all these things.

NATIONS AGAINST OPIUM TRAFFIC

Germany and Great Britain Are Likely to Join Others.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(Can. Press.)—All the twenty-four nations except Germany and Great Britain represented by delegates at the opium conference just closed at The Hague, have agreed to deposit ratifications of the convention prohibiting the traffic in habit forming drugs. State department advisers say that Germany and British Governments are sympathetic toward the anti-opium movement and probably would ratify the convention if the signatures of Austria, Switzerland and Peru, not represented at the conference, were assured. Austria is believed to be well inclined towards the treaty, but Peru hesitates because of apprehensions of injury to her independent coca trade. The Swiss position is not known here.

If any important nation finally refuses to join the movement, it is the purpose of the others to proceed without them in the adoption of the restrictive measures, relying upon import and export regulations to bring the minority into line.

PRESENTATION TO ST. JOSEPH'S HEAD

Miss Gertrude Lawler, President of Alumnae Executive, Given a Club Bag.

TAKING TRIP ABROAD

She Unexpectedly Presents the Mother Superiores With Golden Gift.

Prior to her departure for a few weeks' holidays abroad, Miss Gertrude Lawler, M.A., was last night presented with a handsomely equipped club bag and many expressions of recognition from the executive of St. Joseph's Convent alumnae, of which for the past two years she has been president. A banquet preceded the presentation. Right Rev. Mgr. McCann presiding, and Miss Lawler occupying the seat of the guest of honor. Rev. Father Fruchon, the forty-year chaplain of the convent, was also present. A handsome screen in oils hid the orchestra, which rendered many delightful airs while the menu was being done justice to and the hall was generously decorated with handsome palms and other foliage.

The presentation was made by the right reverend Monsignor, who in the name of the executive, thanked Miss Lawler for her fine work in bringing the alumnae to its present exceptional standing, holding as it does the proud position of being the largest of its kind in membership and being noted throughout a broad area for the alert and progressive nature of its work. The great success of the organization being due in a large measure to the executive ability and assiduous attention of its president.

In replying, Miss Lawler, in her usual generous way, took the credit to herself and introduced an altogether unexpected note into the proceedings, when she in turn, asked Mgr. McCann to present the honorary president, the reverend superior of the convent, with a small parcel, which, on being uncovered, turned out to be a pair of gloves, on the blue satin lining of which glittered a number of large and shining gold coins. What she had been able to do said Miss Lawler, had been the result of the generous contribution of the one to whom she offered her gift.

The singing of "Auld Lang Syne," given in the traditional way, with hands crossed, followed by "She's a Jolly Good Fellow," and bon voyage to the traveler, brought the charming social hour to a close. Miss Lawler will return about Sept. 1.

DUCHESS OBJECTS TO ANNULLING MARRIAGE

Appeal Is Lodged With Supreme Tribunal at Rome.

ROME, July 10.—(Can. Press.)—The Segnatura tribunal, the supreme tribunal of the Curia Romana, has admitted the appeal of the attorney representing Anna Gould, now the Duchess of Tavelland, and Mgr. Parillo, defender of the matrimonial bond, against the decision of the Rota tribunal, annulling the marriage of Count Boni de Castellane and Miss Gould.

The Segnatura tribunal, however, has made no announcement of its decision as yet, and a new trial of the case before the Rota tribunal has not been ordered.

The two decisions have been rendered by the Rota court, the first annulling the marriage of Count Boni de Castellane and Miss Gould, who sought the annulment, and the second reversing the former decree and granting the annulment.

How to Make Your Bed.

THAT beds should be comfortable and sleeping rooms sanitary is admitted by everyone in view of the fact that we pass eight or nine hours out of every twenty-four in them.

A passion for airing bedding thoroughly every day is almost a passport to a clear skin and good health. Housewives who are in the habit of making up their beds early in the morning run the terrible risks of illness and are not as tidy as they think they are.

This is because pounds of waste matter and insensible perspiration leave the body during sleep. This is absorbed by the night clothes, bedding and drapery in the room. It can only be dispelled by a current of fresh air by washing and cleaning.

Mats cannot often be trusted to air beds as painstakingly as the housemistress likes, therefore it is a good plan to ask each member of the family to remove the covers from their bed before they leave their rooms in the morning. This only takes a moment's time and is a great factor in the family's good health.

A family I know had a maid who was good in every particular but this—airing the bedding. Her mistress showed her, time and again, how to lay the covers across two chairs and turn back the mattress and open the windows their widest.

Convinced that Mary was evading this task, she asked her about it. "I think once a week an often enough to cool off the bed," was the girl's reply. As long as she was with this family the mistress had to attend to this herself.

Too often bed-making is relegated to the children of the family. There are two of them this may answer, but it is not possible for one small person to make a bed properly, unassisted. In the first place, as I have intimated, the mattresses should be turned back to allow a circulation of air beneath them, and the covers laid over chairs before open windows.

There is wisdom in having hair mattresses and the best quality of bedding for it outlasts poor goods four to one and is more comfortable. The mattress should be protected by a slip which should be washed when dirty. After the mattress is in place lay on the pad, then the lower sheet. Sheets are usually made with a wide hem at the top and a narrow one at the foot, but some persons prefer marking the top of the sheet with initials. It is important to have some way of telling which is the top and which the bottom. This under sheet cannot be drawn too tightly nor too snugly tucked under the mattress. Upon its smoothness and firmness depends the appearance and comfort of the completed bed.

Now put on the upper sheet and coverlets and turn them down neatly. Tuck the sides and ends under and smooth out every crease before putting on the upper spread. Marseilles spreads are still the handsomest of all. They do not crumple and frequent washings only improve their snowy whiteness. Now come the pillows. Punch them with your fists and shake them until they seem full of fresh air and well puffed out. Now pat them into shape and lay them in place with the open ends toward the sides of the beds.

Shams and bolsters have gone out of fashion and we are glad of this, for they made much extra work, were never useful and seldom ornamental.

When making sheets, cut them so they will be long enough to tuck beneath the mattress at least four inches, top and bottom. They should extend well over the covers when the bed is made and turned down, not only to protect the comforts and quilts, but to keep the covers from touching the sleeper's face.

CUBAN CONSPIRACY BROUGHT TO LIGHT

Plot to Murder Secretary of Interior Causes Unrest in Havana.

HAVANA, July 10.—(Can. Press.)—The Cuban secret police report the discovery of a conspiracy among the adherents of Gov. Asbert to assassinate Col. Aurelio Hevia, secretary of the interior, whom they accuse of attempting to disrupt their party by ordering the late General Armando Riva, chief of the Cuban national police, to raid the Asbert Club on Monday night. This action apparently precipitated the tragedy on the Prado in which Gen. Riva was mortally wounded. No arrests have been made, but the suspects are closely watched and Col. Hevia is strongly guarded.

Apprehensions were felt this morning that trouble might attend the passage of the funeral procession of Gen. Riva thru the city this afternoon. Precautions were therefore taken and detachments of infantry, cavalry and artillery escorted the body, while troops and police lined the route of the procession.

FARMERS' PARTY IN NEW SOUTH WALES

SYDNEY, N.S.W., July 10.—(Can. Press.)—The fifth parliament was opened today by the commonwealth commission, Lord Denman officiating. A novel feature was the presence among the officials of Miss Nancy Isaacs, acting as assistant to her father, Justice Isaacs, one of the commission.

The farmers' and settlers' conference has decided to declare itself a regular political party, making the fourth in state politics.
