

dead, leaving one child, James Douglas. Catherine Corrigan married William McDougall; both she and her husband are dead, without issue. Henry Norland married Andrina Barberie, of Dalhousie, New Brunswick, by whom he has three daughters and four sons. Robert Anderson married Ninon Armstrong. Henry Jones Ruttan died in February, 1879, and my sister married John Wallace in 1892.

My brother George is a physician and surgeon. He married in September, 1860, Catherine Sophia, daughter of Benjamin Gordon French, who was son of Albert French, who was son of Jeremiah French, who was a lieutenant in the second battalion of the Royal Yorkers, and was the first member elected by the County of Stormont to serve in the first Provincial Parliament for Upper Canada that met on the 17th of September, 1792, at Newark, now Niagara. My brother and his wife have issue: Edith, Leila Gordon, Elsie Small, Harold Dunbar and Edwin Corydon. Edith married R. F. Tate, civil engineer, by whom she has now living Edith Maud, Lillian Georgina Hall, Lucia Roberta Beatrix and John Frederick Percy.

MACDONELL.

Macdonell is the surname adopted by the Glengarry branch of the Macdonalds. The family of Glengarry are descended from Alistair, second son of Donald, who was eldest son of Reginald, or Ranald, (progenitor also of the Clan Ranald), youngest son of John, Lord of the Isles, by Anne, heiress of Mac Ruari, born about the beginning of the 14th century.

John Macdonell, of Lick, held the farm called Lick (and still known by that name) on the Glengarry estate in Inverness-shire, Scotland, under the chief of the Clan Macdonell, of Glengarry, as a tacksman or leaseholder, or on a wadset (the old Scottish term for a mortgage.) He was a member of a Cadet family of Glengarry, settled for many generations at Lick as tacksmen and probably kinsmen of the successive chiefs. He married Jane Chisholm, daughter of Alexander Chisholm, of Muckerach, and grand-daughter of John Chisholm, of Chisholm;