low the surface. It may be easily conceived then, that the frost disappears with the melting of the snow in May or June, when the process of heat absorption recommences, and very rapidly warms the exposed black surfaces, and fits them for the reception of seed much earlier than the latitude would render probable."

cplainl. It lies of ifying luring ur intheir and shire, sible, ights.

n addi-

e to be ly by a

d fresh

a fowl.

ong the welling ome to f them ed by able face, buth-iven lour s is ace, em-tain tol-orth iter-Is-

vas be-