

and children which would force victorious armies to capitulate, 92; Germany not to bear responsibility if submarine question seriously threatened maintenance of peace with United States, 93; in accordance with principles of visit and search, merchant vessels recognized by international law, within and without war zone will not be sunk without warning, and without saving human lives, unless such ships resist or seek to escape, 93; in consequence of this order it is not doubted the United States will demand of Great Britain observance of rules of international law, 93; if steps taken by United States be not successful Germany reserves complete liberty of action, 94; American reply, 94-95; will rely on scrupulous execution of altered policy, 94; does not understand newly announced policy in any way contingent upon diplomatic negotiations between United States and any other belligerent government, 94; respect of German naval authorities for rights of citizens of United States cannot be made contingent upon conduct of other governments, 95; Germany reports Bandoeng incident, 95; suggests neutral vessels comply with rules of visit and search when stopped by submarines, 95-96; hopes Germany will warn commanders to make sure merchantmen understand signals before extreme measures are taken, 97; commanders have strictest orders to keep within limits of rules laid down in note of May 4, 1916, 99; German submarine fired on by English yacht, 121; British Admiralty instructions to armed merchantmen as to attack, 123, 126, 130-135; list of cases in which enemy merchantmen have attacked submarines, 126-129; memoranda of Germany announcing unrestricted submarine warfare (Jan. 31, 1917), 301-303; recalls submarine statement of May 4, 1916, 301; blockade zones announced around Great Britain, France, Italy, and Eastern Mediterranean and North Sea, 301; American protest, 303-305; blockade of Arctic Ocean announced, 309-310; Flood Report on, 326-338. See also Lusitania, Falaba, Gulflight, Leclanair, etc.

Suggestions concerning the war made by President Wilson (December 18, 1916), 284-298; suggests that an early occasion be sought to call from all belligerents views as to terms of peace, 285; note to Allied Powers, 284-287; note to Central Powers, 287-289; reply of Germany, proposing conference on neutral ground, 280-290; reply of Bulgaria, proposes immediate meeting of delegates, 290-291; reply of Belgium, 291-292; reply of Allied Powers, 292-295; note from A. J. Balfour, in memorandum from British Government, 295-298.

Sulphate of ammonia, not contraband, 10.

Sulphate of soda, not contraband, 10.

Sulphides of antimony, contraband, 10.

Sulphur, conditional contraband, 4; contraband, 9.

Sulphuric acid, conditional contraband, 4; contraband, 9.

Supplies for belligerent vessels, 138-150.

Supply wagons, contraband, 8.

Sussex, steamer, American inquiry as to sinking, 78; German reply, 81-82; asks further data, stating a ship, thought to be a mine-layer had been sunk on date, 82; suggests that ship may have been damaged by a mine, 82; offers to submit question to International Commission in accordance with Article III of 1907, Hague Convention for Pacific Settlement of International Disputes, 82; American answer, 82-89; was torpedoed without warning, 83-85; never employed as troop ship, 83; statement of facts by United States, 86-89; carried no armament, 89; German reply, 90-94; reserves communications on subject until further investigations have been made, 90; if investigation shows mistake on part of submarine commander, reparation will be made, 90; denies instance is one of deliberate method of indiscriminate destruction of vessels of all sorts, 90; German note of Feb. 8, 1916, gave no assurance that enemy trade in enemy ships within war zone would be spared, 90-91; German assurance of May 4, 1916, that merchant vessels within and without war zone would not be sunk without warning and without saving human lives, unless these ships attempt to escape, 93; American answer, 94-95; accepts