

EGG THROWERS IN WITH PROFITEERS

Lieut. Jack Ramsden Waxes
Ironic on Committee Room
Bombardment.

"The high cost of living," said Lieut. Jack Ramsden, at the final Liberal rally in Musicians' Hall on Saturday night, "has placed eggs beyond the reach of most of us. But to show their indifference to the high cost of living and the price of eggs, our Tory friends secured a generous supply and bombarded our committee-room with them." (Laughter and cries of shame.) "Oh, it's all right," went on Lieut. Ramsden. "They are standing in with the profiteers. Why they throw, I don't remember how many thousands dozens away that had gone bad in Winnipeg cold storage; but they are asking us 70 cents a dozen. And just to show the abundance of the egg reserves, they supply our opponents with egg ammunition to bombard our committee-rooms."

Aid George Ramsden reported a similar occurrence. He said: "They have rotten eggs on our windows and torn down our banner. Surely the great Conservative party has not come down to that."

The incident reported is one of the signs of bitterness between the parties in the closing hours of the campaign. It was reflected in the Liberal meeting in various references made to The Telegram, to the Conservative candidates and to certain members of the government and the Conservative party.

Four Great Battles. Lieut. Jack Ramsden quoted The Telegram as stating that Major McBrien had been thru "four great battles." This is the first time in military annals that anyone has ever heard of an adjutant of a labor battalion being thru four battles, or one battle, said the Liberal candidate.

Joseph Singer said the Conservative party had made the attempt to buy the votes of those whom they called "foreigners" in Southwest Toronto with whiskey. They had tried to control the Hebrew paper, and insulted their intelligence in that way. And at the last hour The Telegram, that speaks for and influences the Conservative party, came out with this statement:

"Don't be a slacker on Monday. The foreigner will vote early and perhaps often if he can get away with it."

"That is what they think of you," said Mr. Singer. "They think you are to be bought up with whiskey. They think you are to be deceived by dishonest campaign tactics."

JEWS LISTEN TO DOCTOR GODFREY

Schnapps, Vishnik and Influenza Are Chief Topics of Anxious Questioner.

"What about comin' over tea on platform," queried a laborite of Dr. Godfrey at a unique meeting held in the Jewish Hall on Maria street last night. The candidate countered by a similar invitation. Jews, Gentiles, labor men and children filled the small room with tobacco smoke and questions and answers. The speaker, Dr. Schnapps, vishnik and influenza, which were greeted with derisive laughter and applause. The audience was as inquisitive as cosmopolitan and kept Dr. Godfrey busy answering questions. Sam Cohen acted as chairman and briefly introduced the candidate to the section of his constituency. The speech by the doctor that followed the introduction was brief and in English, an attempt at translation to Yiddish being vetoed by the listeners. And after that—the deluge.

The L.L.F. member who invited the candidate to come over to the labor party platform stated, in reply to a suggestion that labor and the farmers had nothing in common: "Why should not the minimum wage and short hours apply to farmers of farm help? There is no reason why an eight-hour day and minimum wage of say $20 should not obtain on Ontario farms." (Members of the audience, who were in the knowledge of the subject interrupted the speaker with ribald laughter.)

Eliminate Middleman. With reference to the high cost of living, the speaker asserted that if the middleman was eliminated the ill-used agriculturist would get more for his products and would therefore be able to pay the new scale of wages to their employees.

Many other questions were hurled at the candidate's head and answered, but not always to the satisfaction of the questioner. In regard to a suggestion that the fees at present charged by members of the medical profession might be described as "profiteering," Dr. Godfrey stated that he had never charged for a whiskey prescription in his life.

A loud and anxious voice: "Where do you live, doc?"

At the close of the meeting three cheers for Singer were bestowed. He given, and as an after thought the same compliment was paid to Dr. Godfrey. The greatest disappointment was evident on the faces of the very venal members of the audience at the "early closing" order of the chairman.

George Fraser, 5 Rolyat street, driver of the car, was not held by the police. Alleged by the police to have driven a motor car north on Yonge street Saturday night at a speed of 24 miles an hour, Thomas Walter, Queen's Hotel, was arrested by Policemen House, charged with criminal negligence. At the corner of Walton and Yonge streets, the car, in charge of Walter, hit Martin Hardy, 34 Broadalbane street, Hardy was taken to St. Michael's Hospital, suffering from a cut on the head.

Robert Pickering, 51 Marguerite street, suffered a lacerated ear Saturday night, when a motor truck he was driving was struck by a street car. Pickering, the police say, lost control of the truck and drove in front of the car. The truck was badly wrecked. Pickering was removed to the Western Hospital.

JEWS CONGRESS MASS MEETING

Fifteen Hundred Members
Protest Against Proposed Closed-Door Policy.

To protest against the proposed closed door immigration policy and the recent massacres of Jews in Ukraine, some 1,500 members of the Canadian Jewish Congress attended a mass meeting in Massey Hall last night. The work of this organization has advanced far more than expectations originally held and it has become one of the leading forums of Canadian Jewish thought.

Chairman M. Goldstick in his introductory remarks told first of the organization of the congress and of some of the work which it has accomplished since its inception. He told of the desire of the congress to intercede for the Ukrainian Jews with the powers of the government and of the other planks in the ambitious program set for itself. He announced that a delegation from the Jewish Congress would shortly visit on the Canadian government to urge the necessity of allowing Jews already in this country to bring their relatives to Canada. A commission will also shortly be sent to Europe to investigate the conditions obtaining among the Jews in Ukraine.

Substantial Sum Realized. A. Reinwein, editor of The Hebrew Journal, spoke in Yiddish, and he described the conditions existing among the Ukrainian Jews, and he appealed for monetary help from the audience. A substantial sum was afterwards realized.

Reuben Brainin of New York, the well-known Jewish writer of letters, one of the pioneer congress workers in Canada, said that although Jewry has never achieved such greatness as at the present, yet he thought it shameful that such shedding of Jewish blood should be allowed to go on unhampered.

Abbi Jacob Gordon also spoke, and the meeting closed with the hymn for the dead, which was chanted by Rev. B. Wladowsky, of the University Avenue Synagogue.

MUST WORK WITH CLERGY

At Holy Trinity Church last night, the Bishop of Toronto, in his address on the celebration next Sunday of Holy Trinity's 72nd anniversary, advised the congregation on the need for working with the clergy. He paid tribute to the various rectors and officers who have been at the old parish church these two rules, which are utterly destructive of destructive criticism, should be observed. "Work with your clergy," "do not work against your clergy."

The bishop also spoke on the support the clergy of Holy Trinity had given to the Jewish Society on Edward street and their work to bring strangers into the church, and in concluding asked for help for the forward movement.

American Gunboat, Eagle 41, Is Disabled Off Canso, N.S.

Sydney, N. S., Oct. 19.—The American gunboat Eagle 41 is reported in a disabled condition off Canso, N. S., and is asking for assistance. This information was received by the Sydney agent of the marine department this evening, in a wireless message sent out by the Imperial Oil Company's steamer Montclair. Two tugs have been sent to the assistance of the disabled boat. They would reach the gunboat by one o'clock tomorrow morning. The wireless message sent out by the Montclair, which was passing Eagle 41, did not mention the nature of the disablement of the boat; it simply stated the fact and asked that assistance be sent at once.

LABOR FORCES FINAL RALLY

Labor Candidates' Hold Enthusiastic Meetings All Over City.

With much enthusiasm and by dint of many open-air meetings the campaign of the Labor Party closed on Saturday night with every candidate confident of one or two things, either that he would be returned for his constituency, or Labor would gain a larger number of real Labor votes than at any other election. The addresses of the candidates and their friends all showed confidence of winning much for the party tomorrow.

Large meetings were held at Queen and Spadina in Southwest Toronto, at Broadview and Danforth, in the Northeast, at Gerrard and Pape, in Riverdale, and at New Toronto, West York. Among those who addressed the meetings were William Stephenson, general organizer for the party in Toronto; J. E. Dobbs, treasurer of the campaign funds; Herbert Lewis, business agent of the International Association of Machinists in Toronto, and the candidates.

Speaking at the corner of Broadview and Danforth for J. W. Buckley, Northeast Toronto, J. E. Dobbs pointed to the growing fusion of interests as between Labor and farmer, and emphasized the fact that there was a strong identity of interest in the two platforms. There was, he said, a well-planned attempt to draw a breach between the two forces now welded in one, but time would prove the contention of the opponents of the U.F.O.-Labor affiliation that fears as to the feasibility of the union were groundless. Touching upon the question of initiative and referendum the speaker pointed out it was plain that if a Labor candidate failed to carry out the will of the people who nominated him he would be subject to recall and the constituency would open to the electorate generally, but to the party which recalled the representative. J. W. Buckley also spoke at candidates' meetings in various parts of the city, pointing out the various factors which entered into the planks of the Labor party.

Pressure of Labor. John Macdonald and Herbert Lewis, at the corner of Queen and Spadina, addressing a large gathering, pointed to the reforms induced thru the pressure of Labor forces, reforms, they stated, for which the Hearst government was now claiming all the credit. Touching upon the record of the government, they stated that it had done nothing which any other government would have failed to do, and that in effect it was the five hundred thousand and soldiers and hundreds of thousands of munition workers who had really won the war for the allies. There was no doubt as to the need of Labor representation in the house. The only representative Labor had in Ontario had gone west. He was of such a caliber that he had governed their votes in the house by his sage wisdom. There were other Labor men of equal merit.

James Simpson in New Toronto touched at considerable length upon the many issues involved in the campaign. Among these were the need of curbing the power of that body which was ever desirous of repressing the worker with orders-in-council. Perhaps some orders of this nature have been passed just during the war. Of this there was doubt. There was no doubt, however, that in nine cases out of ten such orders were swayed of the hand of interests of the worker, and the only way to regulate legislation in this respect was to have an all round representation in the house of the workers and the workers allied to defeat the aims of any self-imposed autocracy, no matter what the presumed nature of this autocracy. Democracy was possible only when the entire peoples of any country were adequately represented. The hope of achieving this ideal was strong.

John T. Vick, candidate of the party for Riverdale, in a strong address expressed the opinion that his opponent, William D. Roblin, could not in any sense of the term be considered in the light of a labor representative for two reasons: 1. He was a Tory in principle; 2. He was not a member of the convention of the Liberal-Conservatives as a Hearst supporter. Whatever other considerations might enter into his qualifications these two facts stood out as paramount factors in the present campaign.

Touching upon the principles involved in the fight of labor the moment Mr. Vick made a strong demand for election of labor candidates to the house on the ground that hitherto only one representative had found his way into the holy of holies, and despite the extreme popularity and wisdom of that grand old man, Allan Studholme, he had waged a lone-handed fight for those things for which the party stood. Proportional representation, strong labor representation, pensions for mothers and widows, gratuities for the soldiers, and other progressive factors in the fabric of the country's social life were possible only thru the pressure of the workers' representatives.

BISHOP UNVEILS MEMORIAL WINDOW

St. Aidan's Honors Memory of Late Lieut. Ernest Ford Crossland.

At the morning service yesterday at St. Aidan's Church a beautiful memorial window was presented to the congregation by Mr. and Mrs. F. Crossland in loving memory of their son, Lieut. Ernest Ford Crossland, late of the 33rd Squadron, R.A.F., Leaside. The Bishop of Toronto conducted the ceremony, and the cord unrolling the window was drawn by Brig.-Gen. Robert Rennie.

Bishop Sweeney took as his text the words inscribed on the window. "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life." In the course of his remarks an eloquent tribute was paid to the splendid young man, who was among the first to answer the call of king and country.

Lieut. Crossland enlisted in the 3rd (Toronto) Battalion, 1st Contingent, and after serving with distinction in France for over three years, returned to Toronto. While serving as an instructor in the R.A.F. at Leaside, he was stricken down with influenza, and died on October 20, 1918.

Brilliant Social Functions in Montreal

Are You to Be One of the Favored Ones?

MONTREAL is thinking and talking of little else to-day than the PRINCE'S visit. And foremost in the mind of every woman guest-to-be at one of the balls is the problem of a gown worthy to wear to such an event as rarely comes more than once in one's lifetime. PARIS it must be, of course. Nothing else could possibly fit such a fairy-tale event, where one dances on the same floor with a Prince—and where it is always quite possible, that one MAY dance with THE Prince himself.

Here at Murray-Kay's is a special assemblage of over a hundred exclusive and exclusive frocks, labeled with such names as Callot, Renee, Jenny, Premet (whose lovely creations breathe the spirit of youth), Lacroix, and others.

Their beauty is beyond words to describe. Magnificent gold and metal brocades, delicate metallic laces, sparkling sequins and jets, enter into their fashioning. There are graceful draperies and slender square or pointed trains, while each design has an individual color scheme.

After the Paris idea, the frocks are mostly fashioned for slender figures—36's and 38's.

The prices?—you ask. Well, they are extremely moderate—beginning at $125.00 and on up to $350.00.

FLAVELLE'S DENIALS

Reputable Oakes Charge Regarding Fines on Hotelkeepers and Liquor Over Liquor Laws.

J. D. Flavelle, chairman of the Ontario license board, gives an unequivocal denial to the charges made by J. W. Oakes at Bowmanville to the effect that fines imposed on hotelkeepers had been remitted, and that certain constituents of the city, were not disturbed until after elections so far as the enforcement of the liquor laws were concerned.

Touching Mr. Oakes' charge that a carload of vishnik still remained on the sidings in Toronto untouched, Mr. Flavelle remarked: "I will not discuss that at all. I want an inquiry under oath."

PRINCE OF WALES AT NIAGARA FALLS

Has Dramatic Searchlight View of Falls on His Arrival.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 19.—Another great ovation greeted the prince at Niagara Falls, when he arrived at a late hour last night. The royal party was taken on arrival to the residence of Mr. J. Y. Grant, overlooking the great cataract, and in a few minutes the prince pressed a button which illuminated the Canadian Falls with electric light for the first time in years. It was a species of magic. The prince faced only a low cloud of mist gleaming in the darkness and suddenly every detail of the falls shone under powerful searchlights. The party later went down to the lower levels and viewed the scene at close range. The prince walked up and down for a long time, unable to tear himself away from the spot.

Today he is housed at the Clifton Hotel, overlooking the falls, his room being furnished with the same bed his royal father used many years ago on his Canadian visit.

On Monday the prince will receive an address of welcome from the city, review the veterans and inspect power houses and the lower rapids before leaving for Brantford, to begin the last week of his Ontario tour.
