In July, 1890, the net profits were $972,-962. Limited, peria. Life a Loan and DIANS and onnection Ianager. suspended since March of 1899. But the suspension of dividends was due to other causes besides decline in earnings. Nevertheless the buils made the most of the incident and put the stock up 4½ points, the common stock also advancing 1½. There was continued pressure against Sugar in the opening dealings, but the stock raffied 1½ on a correction in the European sugar cables, showing a rise instead of a decline in the price of raw sugars. This was taken to show that American retiners were again in the market as purchasers of raw sugar and to indicate that the season of active business for retining would extend beyond the usual period this year. Kumors were circulated that in consequence the dividend on sugar would be included. But the demand for sugar certificates was satisfied with the covering of the short interest and the stock closed with a gain of only %. The statement for July on the Archison system was also made the most of by the buils. Net earnings included more than one-third over those for last year, notwithstanding a slight increase in operating expenses, compared with a decrease in operating expenses, compa The only re-medy known to science is "RESTOR-discovered by is country by the co testimonials. ntial. There has just died in Cumberland County, Ky., the oldest son of a family that, so far as any known records are concerned, bears the paim for focundity. He was Jason Webb, third child of Miles Webb, the first settler in the Cumberland district, which is now almost entirely populated by his offspring.  Old The Webb did not do so much toward increasing the population, having added but six to its number—three bdys and three girls.  Jason, who was 81 years old when he died, haw no fewer than 444 direct descendants. He began with 19 children. From these sprang 175 grandchildren, 159 great-grandchildren, and an even 100 great-great-grandchildren, all living.  Next in order of number of descendants comes Jason's younger brother, Miles, who is still as full of vitality, apparently, as any of his descendants, who number more than 400. He was father to 20 children, two of whom died in early life. There are 165 grandchildren, 150 great-grandchildren, and 90 of the fourth generation—a total of 423 descendants.	A. 18 Bur Stu

A wave of unmanagableness often passes over the woman's side of an asylum if the material of a new uniform dress deserves the title of dowdy.  Many insane domen will tear a sombre brown gown to shreds. But if it is a pretty blue, or a smart red, they preserve it carefully against spots and dust.  The effect that dress has on the insane is so well known that the Lunacy Commissioners make special comments in their official reports to the Lord Chancellor on the colors and materials of the gowns supplied to women in the various asylums. Very clever devices to obtain cosmetics are resorted to by patients infected with the mania of vanity, who have been accustomed to artificial aids to beauty.  They soak paper roses in water and use the finted result as a cheek reddener. Or they put the red covers of books borrowed from the asylum library in a basin of boiling water and bottle the carmine fluid for future face use. Fresh flowers of reddsh tinge are crushed and used on faded cheeks and wrinkled skins.  One former society beauty, now in an asylum, is perfectly tractable so long as she is allowed to wear a curly false fringe and powder. How Fox Gets R44 of Fleas,  From The Baltimore Sun,  Edilect City, Md, Aug, 10.—By an old hunter and naturalist of local repute a story has been told here confirming as ab solutely true and trustworthy the published account, which has had few believer until now, of how foxes rid themselves deleas. The fox, according to the book nar rative, simply backs slowly into a stream of water with a portion of the pekt of a rabbit in his mouth ofter the fox has made a meal off the rabbit. The water drives the fieas first up the fox's legs and their toward his head, and, shally out on the piece of rabbit fur, and then the fox drop the fur and his pests are done for.  The local hunter and naturalist referred to, strange to say, had never heard or read this story when he told of the second content of the fox has perfectly the fieas of the second content of the perfectly the fieas first up the fox's legs and their toward his head, and naturalist referred this story when he told of the second content in the second content of the second co	homicidal when she is deprived of a beautiful golden wig suited to a girl of 17. The experiment was tried once, but so much violence resulted that the commissioners recommended that she should be allowed to retain her headdress.  Before admission to the asylum she had poisoned three persons. But the wig and plenty of pink powder keep her peaceable and contented.  The friends of patients who find their happiness in personal decoration bring them small packages of cosmetics, or rather they smuggle them in, for such articles are contraband and against the rules. Tho their minds are gone, the patients are clever enough to make little holes in their mattresses, and to invent most cunning hiding places for their treasures.  In those cases where restrictions of tollet appliances increases insane outbreaks the attendants let these little beauty stores pass by unnoticed. So long as the make-up is not too evident the attendants do not interfere.  Rush Has Commenced.  The rush of Exhibition visitors to the city commenced yesterday, every in-coming train being crowded.
