others for an electric light at the cor-

Ald. Heaman said he had been informed that when they had finished paying for the lights they now had the end of the year they would be $619 32 in debt for this one item alone, and he didn't see how they could put up any more. In answer to Ald. Nutkins, it was explained that there was a clause in the contract by which the lights were to be put out on moonlight nights, but there had been so many dark nights that the lights had been ordered turned on. This had used up quite a sum of money, as they had to pay for the extra lighting. Ald. Douglass said if the agreement

THE JUBILEE SINGERS. The third performance in this city of the Canadian Jubilee Singers and Imperial orchestra was given in the Adelaide Street Baptist Church last night. The entertainment was in every way a decided success, the church being crowded to the doors, while each number on the programme was heartily applauded and many of them encored. The selections which found the most favor were: Chorus, "Roll, Jordan, Roll"; Mr. Cockbin's bass solo, "A Jolly Good Hearty Lad"; and the solo by the boy basso, Mr. J. E. Lightfoot, entitled "The Mighty ceived orders from him to allow no one to drive through there, as it Deept" The company close their highly successful London engagement would block the market. He thought the man in queston understood his business, as he had been connected tonight with a concert in St. James Church, South London.

The bridesmaids were Miss Ina Winnett, of Toronto, and Miss Kate Ellison, of Port Stanley. About 35 guests were present, among them some from Toronto Port Huron, Hamilton and other points. The presents were very handsome. The happy couple left on the 8:15 train via C. P. R. for western points, where they will spend their

"THE BURGLAR."

The central character presented in "The Burglar," which will be the attraction at the Grand Saturday (matinee and night), is such a novel one and is possessed of so much twosidedness, at the same time so seemingly natural, that the audience marvel at the author's conception. A burglar on a midnight exploit is rather pleasantly surprised at the appearance of a little tot, who amuses him in a very astonishing way all the while he is preparing his plunder. Before his departure from the house he discovers in Editha his own child whose mother he has cruelly wronged and deserted. The scene of recognition is one calculated to evoke no end of interest and to keep the audience absorbed until the climax of impunity that "The Burglar" lacks no elements necessary to acceptance by all classes of theater-

His announcements for "The Tornado" were equally surprising, but the fourteen newspapers of Chicago, where he chose to launch his new were a unit in pronouncing it as the perfection of melodramatic work, the superior of every scenic melodrama before the public. The energetic young author and artist was called efore the curtain after the first act, and had to speak his gratitude for the grand acceptance by the audience of his new work.

JACKSON-SMYLTE Miss Helen F. Smylie, of Detroit, (formerly of this city), was married at Grace Church, in that city, last night, to Mr. R. J. Stonewall Jackson. The music of the recessional and processional was written expressly for the occasion, by Edward J. Remick, and the singing was a feature of the evening, Bishop Davies, assisted by Archdeacon Carpenter, of Georgia, and Rev. Dr. McCarroll, rector of Grace Church, performed the ceremony. Miss Ruth Scott of Quebec, and Miss Lillie Little were the bridesmaids, and Miss Louise Geraldine Smylie the maid of honor. Admission to the church was by card only. After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the Detroit Club to the bridal party. The bride's gown was of white moire antique, with a folded empire belt. The ribbon garnitures on the skirt and the belt were fastened with orange blossoms. The tucked yoke and sleeves were of white mousseline de soie and the sleeves were caught at the shoulders with large bows of moire rib-bon. Mr. Sim Fax's of cabinet manifestations was a guarantee to the audience that if there was any loose screw in Miss Fay's phemalia he would find it. Mr. Fax. after examining every article minutely, and after sitting open-eyed in the cabinet with Fay, while the spirits were doing all sorts of funny things, confessed that he could detect not the slightest sign of imposture. The alleged exposure in the San Francisco Examiner, in which it was stated that a trick staple was used in tying Miss Fay, was refuted by Mr. Fax, who studied the staple intently and pronounced it whole. After an entertaining programme. the Somnolency Act, by which the audience had been chiefly attracted, was reproduced on a larger scale than ever, over 50 questions being answered. Strange to say, many of them were written on private paper, apparently precluding the possibility of Miss Fay securing duplicates. How she did repeat such questions can hardly be conjectured.

MR. LABATT PUZZLED. One of the most notable of these cases was that of Mr. John Labatt, whose name in such a connection must necessarily carry weight. Miss Fay struggled to pronounce it, but it was some time before she could spell out L-a-b-a-t-t. "He wants to get rid of some haya load of hay," she said.

Mr. Labatt shook his head. "No; you want to get rid of hay fever, which is troubling you—that's your question. Mr. Labatt admitted that was cortion at home, didn't you?" asked Miss Fav's manager "No," said Mr. Labatt, "I wrote it here, but I used my own paper."

The audience applauded this remarkable evidence of Miss Fay's cleverness, or whatever it might be. She advised Mr. Labatt to go to the White Moun-

The person referred to was the exvolunteer of Wolseley Barracks, who was found dead on the C. P. R. track steps and stood in the aisles, while near Adelalde street. This question hundreds were turned away. Many was asked by Corp. J. Cockburn, or Wolseley Barracks.
