The committee were asked by the minister to consider all matters which directly affect the efficiency of the secondary schools with a view of submitting to him practical suggestions for improvement in the system. The discussion at the first meeting had reference mainly to the question of

The impression that the demands which have been made from time to time for additions to the high school curriculum have led to the organization of courses which bear too heavily upon the pupils in attendance appears to be well founded. The facts and the opinions stated by members of the staffs of the high schools in answer to questionnaires sent out by the minister of education and by the university confirms this impression.

It has been felt, also, that the courses which have been prescribed to the prescribed to the committee will probably be the character of the education that should be given pupils between 12 and 16 years of age and the relation of the high school to the public school in providing this education. This question is of special importance at the close of the third act received a curtain call.

Etnest Rowan made an acceptable Laertes, and William Souter a good of Polonius, which he rendered in a life-like manner and often council like manner and often cuched a high boint of refined comedy. Richard Abbot was not so good in the role of the ghost. A ghost at best is rather a lugubrious caller, but Mr. Abbot fairly chanted his lines.

"The Law Divine" tells an unusually interesting story of domestic life in social circles in London, which has its counterpart in almost every country which sent unen to the great war. Jack La Bas (Mr. Esmond) has returned from the front inen to the great war. Jack La Bas (Mr. Esmond) has returned from the front wounded, to find his wife (Eva Moore) so immersed in her war work as to be apparently indifferent and neglectful of iner husband. A charming young widow (Faith Liddle) appears, and they become enamored of each other, and the husband openly warns his wife that if their home is broken up she, by her indifference and neglect, is largely to blame. All the wife's old affection for her husband returns; she realizes she has put him practically out of her life, confesses she has been wrong, and reconcillation follows. It was all charmingly acted, withshed artists could act it.

Particular mention must be made of the clever work in the artists.

"Help Wanted Male," is the somewhat arresting title of the photo feature at Shea's Hippodrome this week, Blanche Sweet, the winsome little Pathe star, is the big attraction in this picture, and she is some attraction. The plot of the picture deals with the amusing adventures of a young lady (Miss Sweet), who decided to marry a millionaire. Her efforts and mode of procedure might easily be incorporated into a correspondence school course for girls who have similar aspirations.

school course for girls who have similar aspirations.

It is an unusual thing for an athletic or acrobatic act to headline the vaude-ville performance, but such is the case this week, when Tuscano Brothers present their nover athletic offering. It is an act one would go far to see. Daisy Dean & Co. have a bright, clever comedy sketch, in which amusing dialog and comedy, chatter predominates. They certainly raised quite a number of laughs. Singing and dancing, interspersed with comedy talk, makes up the act presented by Conley and Webb, which they call a meiange of mirth-provoking material. "The Garden of Recreation," an unusual and hazardous aerial offering, is presented by Jack and Kitty Damasco. Edward and Wilson and a Sunshine comedy complete the bill.

Sensation at the Strand.

Something sensational, both in the film and in the prolog, of "Madonnas and Men," drew large houses to the Strand yesterday, and nothing has been overlooked, either in the selection of artists or in the lavish settings that lessens fo a moment the interest sustained, not only by the unexpected climaxes, but by the soul of the film, without which it would forfeit the right of being called a masterpiece. The power of money, the result of brooding over revenge, and the attitude toward womanhood, by which every nation is judged, are all interwoven with the night life in New York featuring in each character an artist Grimm, the maniac, with his burning passion for revenge on the daughter of the woman who ilited him, the girl who represents pure womanhood and who is used as a nucleus around which the characters revolve, and the author's genius in disposing of his characters as climax after climax develops, are ably seconded by the prolog, in which living actors and actresses portray the brutality of Rome with its womanhood. Four horses in a thrilling charlot race upon the Strand stage and the dance of the Egyptian slave girl create a decided impression on all who see them. Mr. Blackmore, in his able conducting of the John Arthurs, conductor of the famous Regent Orchestra, introduced a new note into the performances at the theatre yesterday afternoon, when he and Sig. Morando presented a famous scene from a famous drama, the scene in which two angry wives discover the amorous infelicities of Siy John Falstaff, and decide to act accordingly, dramatized in the Shaksperian drama, "The Merry Wives of Windsor." The scene was recreated into an opera, depicting in chanted and angry declamation, the woes and resolutions of the "merry" wives. The scenes were taken well by Miss Leona Ivey as Mrs. Ford, and Miss Leila Auger as Mrs. Page, and the setting was quite medieval The pictorial feature of the program was specially expressed in a drama adapted from a well-known romance appearing in the pages of The Saturday Evening Post some months ago. Bebe Daniels, a new and popular movie star, takes the part of a check-room girl, who is held by the breath of romance, and traveling thru its mazes, eventually reaches the height of her romantic ambition, but not exactly in the way she expected. The main theme of the play is ridiculous, but in details it reveals real life, and abounds in New Yorkisms while the different characters are splendidly portrayed.

"With the increasing use of labor-saving machinery on the farms in Canada, the amount of natural ma-nure for the land is correspondingly lecreasing and that is the one big reason why our industry is gaining such headway. The land must be fertilized; it is gradually becoming impoverished, and will continue to become more so unless the farmers use VETERANS' MASS MEETING.

A mass meeting has been called for next Sunday afternoon and invitations have been issued to officials and prominent members of the G.W.V.A. to attend. An invitation has been issued also to Premier Meighen. Touching upon this meeting, which will take up the problem of unemployment, among others, J. Harry Flynn stated that if the civic authorities in Toronto took no action in the matter the ex-service men themselves would take a hand in the matter since something had to be done to relieve the situation.

Such was the statement made to The World last night by Sir William Cross, big fertilizer and chemical manufacturer of Glasgow, Scotland, who is in Toronto for a few days and staying at the King Edward Hotel. In this connection Sir William stated that he had just completed a deal for a factory site at Welland, Ontario, where a plant with a capital investment of t least a quarter of a million dol-lars will be erected to manufacture

Sir William Cross in addition to being an industrial baronet is a great war veteran. When the war broke out he assumed command of a regi-ment of Scottish Yeomanry and was in France for two years. He was then called to the ministry of muni tions in London, where he was enranged in conducting experiments of high explosives and poison gasses.

J. Harry Flynn, vice-president of the G.A.U.V., stated to The World yesterday afternoon that since Friday night's meeting at Massey Hall, more business and young professional men had joined up with the G.A.U.V. than at any like period
