A NOVEL may be very old, and yet what is old cannot be novel.

SOME young men in search of dollars and cents are willing to accept daughters without sense, to attain their object.

MOTHER—"Ella, go to bed, say good night to the governess, and give her a kiss." Ella—"No, mamma, I don't want to give her a kiss." Mother—"And why not?" Ella—"Because, when any one gives her a kiss, she boxes their ears. Ask papa if she doesn't."

"WHY are we like angels' visits?" asked a pretty girl on a sofa to her bashful lover, who was sitting lonesomely on a chair at the other side of the room. "Really," he stammered and blushed. "I must give it up. Why are we?" "Because," said she, "we are few and far between." He destroyed the similarity almost instantly.

AN act to amend—sewing on a button.

THE world may owe every man a living, but, like bringing to time a bad debtor, it requires considerable hustling on a man's part to collect the bill.

SOME years ago, in one of our Western courts, three men—an Englishman, an Irishman, and a Scotchman—were found guilty of murder and sentenced to be hung. The Judge told them they could each choose the tree on which they would like to be "strung up." The Scotchman promptly chose an ash-tree, and the Englishman an oak-tree. "Well, Pat, what will you be hung on?" asked the Judge. "If it pleases your honor, I'd rather be hung on a gooseberry-bush." "Oh!" said the Judge, "that's not big enough." "Begorra, thin," replied Pat, brightening up, "I'll wait till it grows."
