

Mr. H. P. Burton was appointed Secretary in the place of Mr. Foster who has been kindly acting since the retirement of Mr. Sweet.

In conclusion the Directors of the Halifax Protestant Industrial School would remind their supporters that the object of the Institution is to give a religious and industrial training to such boys as by the influence of their circumstances and lack of parental control are forming vicious habits and tending to become dangerous and costly members of Society. The good results of this training are apparent in the character of many who have been passed through the School and have become useful and industrious citizens.
