That the population of St. John is growing and growing so rapidly that the builders cannot keep pace with the increase was firmly impressed upon a man who arrived in the city this week. Since his arrival he has been looking for a house or a flat but has been unable to find a vacant place. "It is not that I am particular," he said. "I can pay enough rent for a good home but I have got to the position where I would take any kind of a place at all if I could find one, but I don't believe there is even a bean house vacant in this city."

SAYS LAWYERS MUST BE ON HAND

Judge McKeown Lays Down Rule—Nagle Case Goes Over Until Monday

"When lawyers accept retainers in a case they should be on hand to look after their clients' interests. Hereafter I must refuse to adjourn cases to suit the convenience of the lawyers. I have tried to accommodate the bar, but I find that certain members are taking advantage of me and this must stop. In the future when only one side is ready to proceed at the time set I will either allow them to go ahead or else strike the case from the docket and set it over for the next term. We cannot have these perpetual adjournments."

These remarks were made this morning by Mr. Justice McKeown in the circuit court when G. Earle Logan appeared for D. Mullin, K. C., and moved for adjournment until Monday in the hearing in the suit of Thomas Nagle vs. the St. John and Quebec Railway Company and the Quebec and St. John Construction Company, owing to Mr. Mullin's absence from the city. Dr. W. B. Wallace, K. C., and H. O. McInerney, Esq., were on hand and moved for adjournment until Monday. His Honor agreed to the adjournment fixing the next session for Monday morning at 10 o'clock, but announcing that he would not follow this course in the future.

PRESENTATIONS TO TABERNACLE PASTOR AND MRS. WETMORE

At Brotherhood Meeting Warm Tributes Are Paid and Pleading Programme Given

The Brotherhood of Tabernacle Church tendered a social farewell to their pastor, Rev. J. D. Wetmore, last night in the vestry. There was a large attendance and the evening was very enjoyably spent. G. U. Hatfield, president of the brotherhood occupied the chair. The following programme was carried out: Chorus by the brotherhood; solo, Harry Marley, trio, Rev. J. D. Wetmore, C. B. Wetmore and W. J. McEcherri; readings, E. D. Wolfe, solo, Chas. McEcherri; duet, H. Marley and Mr. Mawhinney; solo, Mr. Mawhinney; duet, Chas. and Henry McEcherri, and solo, Harry Marley. Rev. A. J. Archibald, who gave the charge to Mr. Wetmore at his induction, in a capital address expressed the appreciation of the congregation and fellow ministers of the labors of the pastor and the great regret at losing him. He made happy allusions to the respect and love of the ministry and in an eloquent manner called attention to the qualities of mind and heart that endeared Mr. Wetmore to the people of Tabernacle church. The tribute that he paid to his aggressiveness, zeal, loyalty, the success which he had attained in the increase of membership of the stock, and the kindly personality which had been so effective in building him to his people was but an expression of the relations of Mr. Wetmore to his congregation. Rev. Fred Ross, pastor of Coburg St. Methodist Church, also paid a personal tribute to Mr. Wetmore. W. J. Hawkins on behalf of the brotherhood expressed the feeling of that organization toward their pastor, and their good wishes.

On behalf of the brotherhood, Mr. Hatfield presented to Mrs. Wetmore a beautiful dinner set, and to Mr. Wetmore a desk of black oak. Mr. Hatfield told of the happy relation of teacher and class and how there seemed to be a sense of great loss felt by the class at the prospect of his going but conveying to him the prayer that his ministry may be blessed in his new field of labor. With the gift went the following verses embodied:—

Beloved teacher, pastor, friend, We at thy feet this tribute lay For kindly interest, precept, love We cannot even hope to pay.

You gave to us your very best, God only does the harvest know. The Christ you magnified to us Will surely bless you as you go.

You hold a place in our esteem That is not won by earthly show. O man of God, go forth and preach, The Christ you taught this class to know.

Mr. Wetmore made a suitable and feeling reply. For Mrs. Wetmore he said that they had made many very close friendships that would give them memories that would be precious to them all through life.

Refreshments provided by the brotherhood were then partaken of and after singing the National Anthem the meeting closed.
